

This is the most magnificent home we've ever seen.

Mother Nature has children, yet it is our responsibility to protect them. They have voices, yet we must speak for them. They have rights, yet we must fight for them. And they have a home, yet it is we who must shelter them. James V. Zizzi takes a very firm yet simple stand on environmental issues as they affect the building industry on Long Island. "If you don't like an environmental law, work to have it changed. Until then I follow it to the letter."

Some builders bend the environmental rules on behalf of their clients, especially if no one's looking. James V. Zizzi chooses to never look the other way, on behalf of us all.

Million dollar loan closes in 9 days.

A president of a Manhattan based commercial realty company, was looking for a $1 million mortgage with $350k cash out. Equity Now approved the loan over the phone and closed in 9 days, with no income verification.

"With Equity Now there were no hassles and no delays. They've earned my future business." David R., Bedford, NY.

Hampton's restaurant owner gets financing.

A successful restaurant owner needed an $800,000 no income check loan, with $420K cash out to expand his business. He applied with 7 banks over a four month period. The banks wouldn't approve his loan. Equity Now approved his loan in hours and closed in 5 days.

"Next time I'll call Equity Now first." John M., East Hampton, NY.

$750,000 cash out, with no income verification.

A 54 year old self employed investment banker needed money quickly for a lucrative business opportunity. Equity Now approved a $1.6 million mortgage, with $750k cash out.

"Equity Now was professional and fast. They delivered exactly what they promised." Michael W., Cape Cod, MA.

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breath, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

"We go the distance for you."

The British, Herman Melville, John Steinbeck And James Fenimore Cooper

By Dan Rattiner

This weekend is the annual Harborfest in Sag Harbor. Tens of thousands of people come from miles around to celebrate this magnificent village nestled in a sheltered cove on the Hamptons' north shore. For the occasion, I thought it might be a good idea to write about the historv of this extraordinary place. It's been, from the beginning three hundred and fifty years ago, a place of trade and commerce unlike almost any other. At one time, in 1790, there were more square rigger ships in the harbor here than in the Port of New York. The year before, our first President had authorized that a customs house to be built here. More tariffs were collected in those first few years than in Manhattan. At another time in its history, in 1843, someone writing a travel book said there were only two things worth seeing on Long Island, Sag Harbor in the east and Brooklyn in the west.

But if Sag Harbor was founded and built as a great commercial center, it also has a reputation, probably because of its raucous, bustling, fascinating lifestyle, of attracting great novelists. James Fenimore Cooper moved here in 1819. He had married a Sag Harbor girl. He wrote successful novels and for an investment he bought shares in a whaling ship. Among the many books he wrote here was The Last of the Mohicans. One of the lead characters, woodsman Natty Bumppo, is said to have been modeled on a local man named David Hand.

Later in the 1800s, Herman Melville stayed in Sag Harbor and wrote some of his works. Although he wrote Moby Dick elsewhere, in the book, ≥ there is a chapter about a landing made at Long Wharf in Sag Harbor where Queequeeg is so frightened by the bustling, drunk-: en scene taking place on Main Street that he refuses to get off the

In the last half century, Sag Harbor has attracted novelists such as John Steinbeck, who wrote Travels with Charlie while living here with his wife Elaine. He came here in 1949 and in 1968 was named the honorary chairman of the first Harborfest in this town. He rode in the first car in the gala parade. Sag Harbor has also been home to novelist E. L. Doctorow, to feminist Betty Friedan arguably one of America's fifty greatest thinkers — to playwright Lanford Wilson and to novelist Tom Harris. Steinbeck passed away in 1968. All the others are still at work today.

What became Sag Harbor was once just a curve in Shelter Island Bay when the rest of the Hamptons — East Hampton, Southampton and Bridgehampton — were founded in the 1640s. Men hacked their way north through the woods within a few years and found there was a deep water harbor there suitable for ships to pull onto the sand for unloading. They called it Sagaponack Harbor, later shortened to Sag

Sag Harbor. It was very successful and remained in business for more than half a century. In 1742, a small wharf was built at the road end in Sag Harbor. A second wharf where boats could land was added in 1758 and a "sturdy" wharf, with huge iron pots with fires under them, called trypots, where they melted down whale blubber into oil was put into place in 1761. Sag Harbor soon replaced Northwest Harbor, a shallow harbor to the east, where boats had landed prior to that time.

By the start of the American Revolution, Sag Harbor was a bustling trading port with warehouses and docks important enough for the British fleet to take over and use as their headquarters for the east end. After the battle of Long Island in Brooklyn, American resistance collapsed on Long Island, and the British occupied the entire place for the duration of the war. "Traitors" to the Crown fled to Connecticut. On the night of May 23, 1777, however, a group of 40 American commandoes rowed across the Sound from Connecticut, carried their boats across the North Fork at a narrow point, crossed the bay and in the middle of the night set fire to Sag Harbor and took prisoner more than ninety British soldiers staying at the James Howell Inn (known today as the American Hotel). Before dawn, they and their prisoners were back in Connecticut.

In 1791, a man named Frothingham published the first edition of the first newspaper on > Long Island in Sag Harbor. It was called Frothingham's Long Island Herald and it remained in business for seven years. Sag Harbor got its first library in 1800. In 1803 a small fire department was founded. And then came the War of 1812, a sort of brief reprise of the Revolution and the British Navy came and returned the favor of Meigs' Raid, taking over Long Wharf as it was called by that time, and sinking every ship they could with cannon fire.

American troops from nearby towns arrived and in a great gunfight drove the British back to their ships. But when it was over, only 3

Philip and Terri Baird of Friends of AKIM announced that Dan Rattiner has been named Man of the Year for his tireless efforts to help the unfortunate. Mr. Rattiner will be honored at the Plaza Hotel in New York on October 26 at the International Gala of Hope, celebrating Israel's Special Olympic team's success in winning 21 medals. AKIM is a charity to support the mentally challenged of AKIM Israel. Songstress Julie Budd will perform at the Gala. Info: 212-684-1942.

Barbra Streisand appeared at the New School for James Liptons', The Actors Studio in New York City, where Marvin Hamlisch, Donna Karan, Rose Billing's and Dan's Papers photographer Barry Gordin, sat in awe listening to Barbra talk about her life in a five-hour session that ended with a question and answer period. Barbra was having so much fun, she didn't realize the time was flying. She was starving and asked for an Oreo cookie, which they graciously provided for her.

Contrary to Hamptons buzz Ira Rennert does not plan to establish a yeshiva or other school at the mega-mansion that he is building in Sagaponack. Tamara, Ari and Nina, Mr. Rennert's children, will have the use of the house, each with their own wing.

Amanda Hearst of Bridgehampton and her cousin, Gillian Hearst - Patty Hearst's daughter - were at the opening of the new Burberry accessories shop at Bloomingdale's in New York, a benefit for the victim assistance organization Safe Horizon. Safe Horizon's CEO, Gordon Campbell, Malaak Compton-Rock (Chris Rock's wife) and Cynthia Lufkin of East Hampton hosted with Dayle Haddon, Felicia Taylor and Bloomie's CEO Michael Gould. Dr. Ruth Westheimer, Mick Jones, interior designer Mark Epstein of Water Mill, Barbara K, Royce Pinkwater, Debbie Bancroft, Somers and Jonathan Farkas, Bob Tisch, Alice Judelson, Michele Gerber Klein and Catherine Oxenberg were all there.

Martha Stewart, who partied at the home of Reed Krackoff, the President of Coach for the Council of Fashion Designers of America last Thursday, is asking $10.5 million for her contemporary East Hampton residence, and $7.2 million for her duplex in New York's West Village.

Katie Couric and her daughters, Elinor and Caroline, preferred the Hamptons this summer to a pricey oceanfront St. Tropez chateau, where the high temperatures were too troublesome. The family traveled with the Van Munchings.

American merchant ships were still floating of the 25 that had been berthed there.

Another fire devastated Main Street in 1817 and the volunteers of Sag Harbor built and formed the first Fire Company on Long Island known as Otter Hose. The original building, as a museum, remains today. Still another fire consumed Sag Harbor in 1845. This fire destroyed 53 businesses and forty homes. It was the worst. But the town quickly rebuilt itself.

Without any doubt, the heyday of Sag Harbor took place between 1800 and 1849 when it became one of the great whaling towns in the world. Shortly after 1800, a great demand for whale oil grew as America began lighting its homes with it. At the same time, whales which could be caught quite near shore, became scarce. It would now be necessary to build world-class ocean going sailing vessels that could go around the world, whaling in the deep ocean, to return with barrels and barrels of the stuff. And so Sag Harbor thrived, as did Nantucket, Martha's Vineyard and New Bedford, Massachusetts, the classic whaling towns aong the east coast of that era.

The ships, as many as a hundred of them. would go out from Long Wharf, which was twice as long as it is today with ships berthed on both sides, and stay out on their voyages three or four years. The captain and crew would be in partnership with the owners of the vessels who built great mansions in Sag Harbor sharing in the profits. Whalers would return not only laden with barrels of whale oil, but also with a crew of exotic sailors from all over the world. In 1845, it was said, you could walk down the bustling Main Street of Sag Harbor - a loud steam driven engine providing water pressure for the town, a wonder of the age, and see Algonquin Indians, men from the Fiji Islands, from Africa, from Polynesia, aborigines from Australia talking in hundreds of tongues. There were carpenters, cooks, bartenders, rope makers, barrel makers, ironmongers, warehouse owners, accountants and lawyers. And up and down the street there were rooming houses, whorehouses and bars filled with men and women. No wonder Queequeeg would not get off the boat!

Some of the great works of architecture in this town were built during the 1840s. The grandest of the whaling captain mansions was built in 1845 by Benjamin Huntting II. He hired the great architect Minard LaFever to design it. In 1846, what was to become the American Hotel was converted from the wooden clapboard James Howell Inn to the substantial brick structure that stands today. There was a widow's walk and cupola on the roof. It was standard procedure to go up high and look out into the harbor for arriving ships.

In 1847, ground was broken for what would be the pride of Sag Harbor, the great First Presbyterian Church, sited high on a hill, built in a spectacular Egyptian style and sporting a slender, wooden steeple that rose nearly twenty stories into the air. It was the tallest structure on Long Island.

And then came 1849. The year before, Sag Harbor experienced its "million dollar year," meaning that the value of the whale oil brought in exceeded that incredible amount (probably more than a billion dollars in today's currency). But something new was being marketed. Oil had been discovered in the ground, out west. And it was better for lighting lamps than whale

The Dreaded Eurasian Phragmites Take Over Georgica Pond

By Dan Rattiner

A new battle is looming at Georgica Pond. No, it is not about the killer swan with the seven-foot wingspan that menaces kayakers and canoeists up at the northern end where he or she has a nest. (Nobody has gotten close enough to check on the sex.) It is not even about finding out and punishing the vigilantes who opened this famous East Hampton pond to the sea in July, letting out all the water. (The mud bottom remains.) It is about grass. Tall grass that has grown to be eight feet tall along the banks of the pond, blocking the view of the residents who live there both of the Atlantic Ocean and of the pond itself. It grows in the wetlands. And in the wetlands, of course, nobody is allowed to do anything without environmental

Living on the waterfront on Georgica Pond, of course, is the most exclusive address in the Hamptons. It actually outranks the oceanfront. But if you buy a home there — which would set you back a good ten or twenty million - you will find yourself in the company of people such as Martha Stewart, Steven Spielberg, Harry Maclowe and Arthur Ross, among about thirty others. Georgica Pond is a little piece of heaven. At least that is how it appears from the outside. On the inside, it is something else. War is about to be declared on a plant. But there are arguments about military tactics.

The enemy to all concerned is a species of tall grass that is found native all over the world, called phragmites. There are many strains of it. The local strain here, which has been here for centuries, rises to about four feet and fits neatly into the community of grasses, plants and trees that we have around. The strain that has taken over much of Georgica Pond and much of the wetlands in this area is from Eastern Europe and Asia. And it is very, very aggressive and has taken over much of the pond. It has almost completely blocked the big cove on the eastern side of the pond.

Facing this enemy in paradise, you would think, would be a united front of private citizens, all of whom now look out on this eightfoot tall wall of phragmites, petitioning the DEC and the Village for permission to remove it. Not so. There are two factions. One, headed by Howard Philips, wants to poison the phragmites with herbicide. The other, headed by Arthur Ross and Steven Spielberg, wants to cut it down to just above the pond surface and salt it. This strain of phragmites hates salt. In experiments, salt water has caused the phragmites to retreat, at least temporarily. In other experiments, when cut it grows back but not as quickly and not as tall.

Had there been a united front in facing this enemy, an application to the DEC would already be underway. It isn't. You have to do one or the other, either poison it or cut and salt it. Of course, it is possible that the DEC will say you can do nothing. Learn to live with it. Build

"There have been many meetings and debates," he told me. "And more scheduled. There's a lot of ego here, some of it overt, some of it covert."

I asked him what he thinks ought to be done. He said cut and salt. He said if anybody puts poison in Georgica Pond without his permission, he will quit his job.

"There are a number of other players here, besides the residents around the pond and myself," he told "There are the Trustees. There is the East Hampton Village. The group of residents favoring poison are leaning heavily on the Village for their support. It's fair to say that the Village wants very much to please these rich and powerful people."

"Do either of these two factions have a name? Georgica Pond Citizens in Favor of Poisoning Phragmites?" I asked.

"I think the Howard Philips group, which favors the poisons, does, but I can't for the moment remember what it is."

"Why is this strain of phragmites more powerful than the local kind?"

"It has a terrific root system, sometimes extending thirty or forty feet just under the surface of the water. The roots are as much as twoinches thick. They suck up all the nutrients in the water and spread further. Buds form. They grow as tall as eight or nine feet, like corn. Though they are a grass, they have leaves. You can't see through stands of these Eurasian > phragmites. They grow thick. And they take over.

"Do they actually kill the other

"It's fair to say that they do. They take the nutrients in the ground. Nothing is left for anything else. You can't even find our native phragmites anymore. The invader has become a danger to endangered species."

"Could it be declared an enemy to native plant life?"

"I think it could. It is like an illegal alien."

"Is it just a danger on the East End?"

"These Eurasian phragmites are taking over in much of the world. It's a worldwide problem. I have traveled in many parts of the world and have seen both local strains and this Eurasian houses on stilts to see over it.

War is about to be declared on a plant. But there are arguments about military tactics.

As the debate between these two sides continues - money is not the issue - I spoke at some length with Larry Penny, the East Hampton Environmental Officer, who can give his blessing on one approach or another. His blessing would carry great weight with the DEC.

Strain and the two are not living in harmony. I recall seeing this strain in the jungles of New Guinea some years ago. I was very surprised to see it there. Now we have GPS and we are able to see what it is doing here on the east end. It's taking over in Napeague, Fresh Pond, Accabonac and Northwest Creek here in East Hampton, which is the territory I watch over."

"How did it get here?"

"Nobody really knows. But probably by boat, I suspect. It was first identified in America by a Yale researcher named Christine Saltenstall in 1938. I personally saw it first as a boy when I lived in Mattituck on the North Fork as a boy . That was in 1942 or 1943. I found it in some muskrat traps I had set."

"Is it a danger to humans?"

"If you get into a stand of it, it can be completely overwhelming and suffocating. You can lose your sense of direction. If you're claustrophobic, it can trigger an attack."

"Sounds dangerous to me."

So ended my interview with Larry Penny. Here's what I think. I think we have a whole lot of very powerful people on this pond and there is no reason they could not reach right up to the top. I expect that, within two weeks, we will see President George Bush on television declaring that Eurasian phragmites are a Weapon of Mass Destruction and that they are a danger to the nations of the world. We must declare war on phragmites. A United Nations resolution must take place, a series of military operations begun and this enemy of the people, this scourge of the civilized world be eradicated from the planet. Concluding this part of his speech, he could then segue from that into a talk about what to do in Iraq.

It is very interesting to consider Eurasian phragmites as "illegal aliens." They were legal in Eastern Europe and Asia after all. And if you look at old photographs of the East End, you see that the flora and fauna of this place seems to change all the time. It gets almost completely renewed every half century. Many people on the East End came here in 1960 or 1980 and they see the landscape with a certain kind of greenery and say this is the Hamptons they know and love. Then, all this new stuff comes in — trees from Africa, bamboo from Japan, beautiful phragmites from Eurasia - and make no mistake, killer it may be but it really is beautiful - and we remember the potato fields that are now in wine grapes, and we remember the soft muted colors of the Hamptons of half a century ago and we compare them to the bright flowers and vines of today - and who are we to say what is "indigenous?" New species are born and old ones go extinct every day and nature has its ways and maybe we ought to just leave it all alone.

Out on Georgica Pond, they look out at the Eurasian phragmites, which blocks their view of the mud that was once Georgica Pond, and the artificial cut that was put there by some vigilantes thereby ending all sailing and boating on the pond for the summer and, as near as I can see, all of this has really pissed off the killer white swan with the seven-foot wingspan.

I wasn't there, but there's a report that the swan sank a catboat in June, chased off the occupants and then, fighting with a man in a kayak in early July over an oar, broke it in two.

Don't be surprised if next week in the middle of the night, somebody goes out and does in the swan with a hand grenade. As I said, these are powerful people and they are used to getting what they want, whatever it is.

Traveling To The Seventh Town In The Hamptons... Manhattan

By Dan Rattiner

One of the great joys of living in the Hamptons is Manhattan. People say the Hamptons is the sixth borough of New York City. I like to think of it as the other way around. The Hamptons has major downtowns. Manhattan is the eighth.

The connection between the Hamptons and Manhattan for many people is the Hampton Jitney, which has service almost every hour of the day between here and there. The stewards andstewardesses on board serve food, drinks and hand out newspapers and magazines. It is arguably a cocktail party on wheels.

Personally, after the paper goes to the printer, which is Wednesday in the early morning, I take the Jitney to the city. My significant other has a place there. I stay overnight and come back on Thursday. It's a wonderful contrast between city and country.

This past Wednesday afternoon, I went to the city aboard the Jitney because I was invited to attend a bachelor party for John Roland, the Channel 5 anchor who was getting married in Westhampton Beach later in the week. The party was at Elaine's on Second Avenue and 89th Street beginning at 7 p.m., and because it was a bachelor party, it was men only which meant I could not go with my significant other. My plan was to arrive around 5, get off at 86th and Third with all the stuff I was bringing to the city, go to the apartment up near Fifth Avenue, say hello and leave everything, and everybody - as you will soon see - and then go to Elaine's.

And so the bus arrived and I got off. My stuff and entourage included a small white dog on a leash, a carrier case for when he was on the bus, a black pull suitcase on wheels for stuff I was bringing into the city, a sports jacket for the bachelor party with cell phone and Palm in the two breast pockets, respectively, and a black computer shoulder bag affectionately known as "my life," that contained my 2003 appointment book, my laptop computer, notes for various stories I intended to write and a New York Times. All of this is very important to what would transpire during the fifteen minutes after leaving the Jitney.

First of all, after I stepped off onto the sidewalk, it began to rain. It was a soft drizzle. I took the dog out of the carrier and put him on his leash, got my black pullman suitcase from the cargo area of the bus, and then watched as the > bus drove off. On sunny days, I walk from here to the apartment. On rainy days, I hail a cab. I looked up and down the avenue and the side street where I was. No cab. It was rush hour and it was raining. There would be no cab. I'd walk.

> Directly across the street I bought an umbrella and a dozen red roses. I stowed the red roses in the lined interior of the dog carrier and started west, first on 85th Street and then, after a turn down Lexington, two blocks across 83rd Street. I had the shoulder bag over one shoulder, the dog carrier over the other shoulder, I was pulling the suitcase, holding the umbrella over my head and holding the leash as the dog trotted along side. Don't ask how I was doing this. I don't know my-

had not picked it up.

In a panic, I turned around and retraced my steps. No luck.

Up at the apartment, I explained what had happened in fairly calm tones. The reason for this was that the Palm was still in my jacket pocket, as was my cell phone, and my wallet with my driver's license and credit cards were still with me. My appointment book would be of no value to anybody but me and as a matter of fact, on the opening page of it I had written a note for just these circumstances. It read IF LOST PLEASE RETURN TO DAN RATTINER, followed by my home phone number. As for the laptop, it was eleven years old and I could buy a used one, the exact same model, on EBay for about $50. In fact, I had two spares at home. Furthermore, I am one of the few people who backs up everything of importance on the laptop. They could keep my laptop.

I handed over the roses, seemed very blasé about the whole thing and then, as I thought further, panic set in. My checkbook was in the shoulder bag. And on the second page of my diary were all my various insurance, banking, and social security numbers, airline mileage account numbers, and all the various passwords for everything. If someone put their mind to it, I could become one of those faceless, identity-robbed homeless people you read about.

It was well after the close of business hours at this time. There was not much I could do. I could only hope that somebody would call my home > saying that they had found "my life." I thought - what would I be willing to pay for this? Using a copier, the loss of my identity numbers could take place even if the bag were returned to me. I could shut my bank account. I thought I could fairly easily reconstruct what appointments I had. A hundred dollars.

I was still at the apartment. "I loved the roses," my significant other said.

I called my home in East Hampton and got my son Gabriel. No, the phone had not rung in the past hour. Yes, he would call me immediately if anybody called about the bag. I figured that with the bag having some value in the wrong hands, with the possibility that the bag could be acci-stopped under an awning to take the call. I set everything down and when the call was over picked it all back up and, wagons ho, started west again. I was between Madison and Park when I realized that not everything I started out with was still with me. My shoulder bag, "my life," was gone. I had set it down during one of my stops. I dently thrown out, and with the possibility of Good Samaritan behavior in Manhattan, the odds were about three out of four I would never hear about my bag again. So I went to Elaine's.

It was a wonderful party, among those attending were Jim Ryan, Marvin Scott, Max Gomez, Steve Dunleavy, Ernie Anastos, Warren Wolf, Ian Rae, Roseanne Scotto, Father Pete and Chris Jones. People were roasting John. "We wanted to get a stripper," somebody said, "but we couldn't find anybody in the city that John hadn't dated."

Everybody was drinking pretty heavily and that seemed like a real good idea to me. I had a dour expression on my face and there were photographers around taking pictures. How many would it take to get a smile on my face?

my coat pocket. My heart leaped.

"Got it," Gabriel said. "It's at the reception desk of Loyola School at 83rd Street and Park. Guy's name who found it is Jeffrey Alfie. He'd opened it. Described everything. Found your phone number. Here's who you call."

Gabe gave me the number.

"Is he there?"

"I got the impression he was leaving there and this is the number at the reception desk. Try it."

I walked out front of Elaine's and, standing in the rain, first called my significant other, and then the number Gabe gave me.

"Loyola School," a woman's voice said in a thick accent.

"This is Dan Rattiner. Do you have a bag there that belongs to me?"

"Yes we do."

"What hours are you open?"

"We're open ten to ten. So you could come right now."

"I'll be right over."

"Just go to the big wooden doors and ring the bell. It's on 83rd. I can see you through the video. I'll let vou in.

"Is Jeffrey Alfie there?"

"He works here. But he had to leave. I'm here. The name is Jalma. Bring some identification."

Six minutes and eight blocks later, with the party still going strong at Elaine's, I was ringing a buzzer by the big wooden doors at the Loyola School. You go up ten concrete steps to get to the door, and after you are buzzed in, you go up a flight of stairs to get to the reception desk, which is just off the main hallway on the left. There sat Jalma Guevara, a Brazilian woman with this charming accent, a computer on her left, a small TV on her right to help her get to 10 p.m. during the quiet moments, and behind her on the wall a big framed photograph of the Father Eugene J. Prior.

I told her who I was and how happy I was at this outcome. It seemed to be a quiet evening. So we talked. I asked her about the picture behind her and she told me he still presided over the place, and that this was not only a school, but also a church, a residence, and the Loyola Headquarters. 206 students are enrolled in the school, she said, and they stay open until 10 because they have a gym, extra curricular activities and, sometimes, parties, though not much was happening on this particular night.

"Except for your black shoulder bag," she

She asked to see a photo ID, and when I gave it to her, went into another room and shortly returned with my bag. I checked inside. Everything was there.

Here is what had happened to this bag. Jeffrey Alfie, the director of technology, after staying late to do paperwork, was leaving the school with another teacher around 7:30 when he saw the black bag on the bottom step outside. He thought it was a bomb.

"Eventually, he got his courage up and with his friend slid his umbrella under the shoulder strap and they carried it up here," Jalma said. "We discussed calling the police. And then he decided to look inside.

"Anybody leaves something like this at this school, inside or out, it never, ever gets stolen. I am proud to work here. This is a wonderful Jalma Guevara has worked at this school for twenty years, three years at the reception desk. She had been among those that organized the funeral for Jackie Onassis and John-John had sent her a book to thank her.

"Once, a lady came here saying she had left a bag here with $3,000 in cash and her ID in it. She was crying. She worked for a woman who gave her a check and told her to cash it. Now she had nothing. We had found this bag and I had it in the back and I asked to see her ID and she burst into tears again and said it was in the bag. Eventually we straightened it out and we got her bag for her. It was an emotional thing."

I returned with my bag to the party at Elaine's. They were auctioning off John's little black book, which had in it his old girlfriends' phone numbers.

"It's a little old," the auctioneer said. "But it has the private numbers of Hermione Gingold and Doris Day. Or what they were then. Anybody want it?"

Nobody wanted it.

We sat down and had dinner. The evening got funnier and funnier, then maudlin, then wistful, then joyful. Everybody spoke of how they had met John. John's new bride was praised by all. The party ended about eleven and I picked up my black bag, which had been hanging on the back of my chair, clutched it to my chest, went outside and got in a cab. I would send Loyola one hundred dollars.

Now, with a few joyful champagnes in me, I wondered if I could remember how to tell the cabby where I wanted to go.

Chopping Up The Hamptons Into Exclusive, Selfish Little Enclaves

By Dan Rattiner

The water, wetlands and beaches that line our shores belong to everybody. The law says that if you are a resident of the State of New York you can sail the waters, lie on the beaches or tread lightly through the wetlands. A few hundred feet behind these lands and waters, it's private property. If you own that property and look out on the view for long enough, you can get to thinking that you own the view, too. This, today, is what I think, and what a lot of people think is going on along the oceanfront in Southampton Township, where the very, very wealthy - and you have to be wealthy to own oceanfront property - are moving forward with a plan to create an Incorporated Village of Dunehampton where an unincorporated piece of Southampton Town is now.

Frankly, I speak from personal experience. I live on Three Mile Harbor Road in East Hampton with a splendid sunset view of the harbor over boats docked in slips there. One year, in one of these slips, the Grucci Fireworks Company parked the big ugly barge off which they shoot fireworks in celebration of Bastille Day at Boy's Harbor. After the celebration, the barge was returned there, the Grucci people having paid for the slip in the marina that owned it. It would remain there a year, and for that whole year, I was angry about it. How dare they put this thing that belonged in the Port of Newark right in front of my view?

I knew perfectly well that I did not own this view. I knew my rights stopped right at the border of my property between my house and the water. Still, I could not help but be mad. It was a totally irrational thing. To this day I never told anybody about it because I was actually ashamed to be having these feelings.

The people who decide what could, or should, go on regarding the strip of oceanfront property in eastern Southampton town are by rights the townspeople. The state and even the federal government defer to the towns for the most part. The people living in the towns include about 500 homeowners who are oceanfront and maybe 20,000 homeowners who live set back from the oceanfront anywhere between one hundred yards and ten miles. It makes sense for each of these homeowners and their adult family members to have a say about the beach — where there should be access to it, what hours there should be lifeguards, how much beach parking stickers should cost and so forth and so on.

In some parts of the Hamptons, particularly

WESTHAMPTON DUNES

People who are promoting the new Village of Dunehampton often point to the Village of Westhampton Dunes as a success story to emulate. This village, entirely oceanfront, was founded on the ruins of an earlier beachfront development on Dune Road, part of Southampton Town, which was washed away by the ocean in 1988. Until it formed up as a Village, it was a collection of homeowners with underwater homesites and little leverage to get anything done.

I have three thoughts about this. One is that it is two hundred yards wide and a mile and a half long peninsula of land almost entirely surrounded by water. There are no "inland" owners who were disenfranchised by the incorporation.

The second thought is that this peninsula was literally completely washed away. The ocean met the bay. Half of what is there now was underwater and the rest cut off and vandalized when the incorporation went through. It was, indeed, a full disaster in need of Federal inter-those parts with downtowns, people have incorporated smaller entities into villages. I think there are five of them. And these villages have the same powers as the towns they are contained within. But in every case, the villages run democratically, with residents who are right on the ocean having the same vote as those who live as far away from the beach as one or two miles. Southampton Village has about 5,000 residents. East Hampton Village has 4,000. The vast majority of the people are away from the beach. Yet they have equal say as to what goes on oceanfront as the 200 or so who are right on the ocean.

The unincorporated section of Southampton from the Montauk Highway south to the ocean where Dunehampton is being considered, has about 5,000 residents as part of the 20,000 of the whole town. It is not an affront to anybody to think that these 5,000, going back from the ocean as far as the Montauk Highway, might form a new village. Probably 4,800 would still not be right on the ocean. But that is not what is being proposed here.

The Village of Dunehampton, as it is proposed, is six miles long along the ocean and on average about two hundred yards wide. It consists, for those six miles, of just everybody who is ocean-front. If it succeeds and gets formed, what goes on on the beaches, which belong to the State of New York, will be decided by about 230 property owners who live right on the ocean — and nobody else. Everyone inland will be cut out of the decision-making process. It will be 230 property owners, the State of New York, and the Federal Government represented by the DEC. It's about power.

The people who are proponents of this new village say they want it because of a new law the Town of Southampton passed that negatively affects their ability to save their houses if the sea tries to take them. What are these people thinking? When they bought their properties, and either built homes on them or moved into homes already on them, they knew perfectly well that the sea might sometime take them. The sea took 300 of them in the Hurricane of '38. In this very area, the sea took the Rudin house in 1998. It has not been rebuilt and if it is to be rebuilt, it will be rebuilt far back from the sea so as not to be washed away again soon.

People in this community, and I am talking about year-round residents who vote in these parts from ocean to Peconic Bay, have traditionally decided what is or is not safe to rebuild. They also decide what is, or is not in everybody's best interest to put down on the beach to protect it. They will not allow a steel wall. They will not allow jetties. People with oceanfront homes now want to take this decision-making process away from these people. The oceanfront homeowners think they own not only their oceanfront homes, but the dunes in front of them and maybe the water in front of that, I think.

Over and over I have heard that the residents who have these homes only want to be able to rebuild if their homes fall into the sea. I assure you that if they incorporate and one of their homes is threatened, the other 259 will let the endangered homeowner do whatever he wants to the ocean-front, whatever it might be that they can get away with "legally" through the new village, to see to it that the house is restored. In an incorporated government where 260 people all have oceanfront homes, where many of them may be suffering from the Grucci Fireworks Barge Syndrome, and where there is the truth that is There But For the Grace of God Go I, there is simply no other way to imagine this scenario.

In the end, it comes down to just what kind of place do we want to make of the Hamptons for our children and our children's children. This newspaper fights for all the things that make this place beautiful and unique — our village greens, our old New England downtowns, our fishing fleet, our natural habitat, our old architecturally beautiful homes, and our beaches. We can have all these things, or many of them. Or we can have very few of them or none of them, with lots of KEEP OUT signs, EXCLUSIVE and PRIVATE signs, and with a privileged few who get everything and the rest of us who will simply lose what was so valuable and unique about this place.

One of the most unusual things, in this fight about whether or not to form the Village of Dunehampton, is how it has ripped asunder neighbors from one another. There are very wealthy people who are just a block or a block and a half back from the ocean. They can walk to it. The dotted line that shows where the new village borders will exclude them. You have to be really, really oceanfront, or know somebody who, wink, wink, decided to have this wiggly line include you anyway.

The people who wish to create this village should have a sit down and work things out with the Town of Southampton. There is a lot of distrust among the oceanfront property owners and the present members of the SouthamptonTown Board. I suggested several weeks ago that the Town of Southampton rescind for three years the ordinance the oceanfront homeowners found so offensive. Not much is going to go wrong in three years. Bad feelings can be fixed. New approaches can be found.

Frankly, what this ordinance is about will be long forgotten in twenty years. What will be remembered by our children if this village is formed is the awful legacy of an exclusive enclave that got torn from Southampton Town to change the lives of 20,000 non-oceanfront Southampton residents forever.

vention. This is not the case in Sagaponack.

The third thought is — look at what they have done. The earlier beachfront development had many places along the road where motorists could park and take their families to the beach. There was much open space between the houses with wooden walkways to give access. Also, the beach was quite visible, natural and accessible. Today, the new village, after subdividing many oceanfront parcels is wall to wall houses so close together you can hardly see between them. There is no beach access. There is no parking on any street in the entire village. And you can't even see the beach. The peninsula has been rebuilt upon the foundation of a vertical steel wall sixty-feet high and a mile long that was pounded into the sea and covered over with sand. It all looks man made, which it was. The people with the lots summer there and have a good time. As for the rest, get in and get out. There is no welcome here, you don't belong there, and that's just how they like it.

Surf's Up

People Come From Far And Wide To The Hamptons And Montauk

By Dan Rattiner

Friday afternoon, as it sometimes does in early September, the word went around in the local high schools and other places that the surf was up, big time. It was Hurricane Fabian, moving up on Bermuda in the North Atlantic, churning up the ocean, sending monster waves to the Long Island shore five hundred miles away.

There were other considerations. High tide would be at six in the evening, three hours after school let out. Sunset was expected at 7:15. And with the summer unofficially over, by five days, beach driving rules would be relaxed. It would be possible to bring woodies out onto the beach.

And there were still more considerations. For and there were still more consideration parents who might fear for the safety of their teenagers, there was the fact that it was a red flag day. Nobody allowed in the water except skilled surfers and swimmers. No lifeguards. Dangerous surf was expected. The water temperature would be at its warmest, as it is every September, and the sun, still warm and bright, would set not over the ocean, but over the dune to the west, meaning that the bright light of the sun would shine on the curl of the wave rather than on the back of it. The kids would be in the spotlight right until sunset.

You don't often get a convergence of things like this. And thus it was that at over thirty road ends in the Hamptons, the surfers and their friends and families, some from as far away as New Jersey and Pennsylvania, assembled beginning at 5 p.m. to be part of a spectacular event, man — and woman — against nature. Against waves twenty-feet high that you might only see on the North Shore of Hawaii or in Australia.

This reporter was out at Peter's Pond Beach for the duration and watched the surfers park their cars and grab their boards and run, not walk, down the path through the dunes to the oceanfront. The ocean crashed and shook in front of them. A thin salty mist dusted the sunlight. And for some reason, there were dozens and dozens of giant dragonflies swarming around, not doing anything, but flitting here and there, nervously. What was going on?

By six o'clock, there were thirty or so surfers in the water and maybe a hundred people, including parents, grandparents, houseguests, lovers and little children on the shore. Those on the shore were not sitting by. They were standing by, alternately cheering and groaning as the surfers did spectacular tricks and completed them, or did spectacular tricks and crashed and burned. There was no in-between.

Among those from this area braving the surf and zipping sideways into the curl of the waves, blasting out skyward into thin air and generally performing dazzling displays of bravery and daring, were Jesse Spooner, Nick Cohen and Rick Musnicki, and on the distaff side Terri Patterson and a fabulous European girl named Heika. Bruce Bailey and his brother Java were out, Chris Harmon, Charlie Wiemer, Ryan Sabo, Michael Sarg and Chris Jackson were also in the water, too.

Who knew these kids could perform like this? On the other hand, were they really performing? On certain days, in certain places, the gods bring together an afternoon like this, and they were thrilled with every minute of it. It was a day they would never forget. It was certainly something I would never forget. The memory of it stayed with me the whole of that night and the next day when, at 5:30 p.m., I came down again.

It had gotten way out of hand by this time. The seas were a choppy mess, crunching and lurching this way and that. The tide was so high — a hurricane tide — that it had swamped the beach. Waves would slide up and spend themselves all the way to the back of the dunes in some cases. The dragonflies were gone.

There were people here again, but just a dozen or so. And no surfers. Until one came down, Adam Le Grande, and gave it a try. I wondered if anybody would stop him. Nobody did. He got out about halfway to the break line, turned around and came back. It was impossible. "There's a real nasty hole out there," he said. "My life is worth more than that."

The day before, Friday, had come and gone. Things had been in alignment. Now the surfers would watch and listen. It would come again. It always did.

oil. Also by 1849, the duration of the trips by the Sag Harbor ships had lengthened substantially. Whales were being hunted toward extinction. The era of whaling was ending, quickly and irrevocably.

And then, in the fall of 1849, word spread through Sag Harbor that gold had been discovered in San Francisco. These Sag Harbor ships were oceangoing vessels. The streets would be paved with gold out west. Almost the entire whaling fleet at Long Wharf simply pulled up anchor and left that fall. A few stayed. They ventured out for one more long, multi-year voyage into the South Pacific for whales. And that was it.

For the next hundred years, Sag Harbor struggled to make its way in the world. Mrs. Russell Sage bought the Huntting Mansion and made it her summer home until she passed away in 1918. The Customs House closed down and was moved to another part of town. Only the Presbyterian Church continued to stand tall.

But Sag Harbor soldiered on. Around 1870, the Long Island Railroad, which was owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad at that time, built tracks out from Southampton through Bridgehampton to Sag Harbor and right down to the end of Long Wharf. Ships could come in and unload their goods right into waiting railroad cars. In 1891, ten years after another fire burned some stores on Main Street, a firm called Bliss and Co. bought the remains of a mill by Long Wharf and opened a very unusual operation. Bliss was in the business of making steam torpedoes for the Navy. They would test them off Long Wharf, firing them underwater to the far shore. Those that tested well would be packed onto railroad cars and shipped back to the Bliss and Co.'s main facility in Brooklyn.

The Bliss torpedo testing station on Long Wharf is today the Bay Street theater and B Smith's restaurant. The testing lasted until 1938, when another torpedo testing station not owned by Bliss, featuring a new compressed air method, was established in Montauk. As late as the 1950s, torpedoes were found on the bay bottom here in Sag Harbor, their propellers visible, many of them fired from the huge 150 foot long steel Bliss ships known as the Emblane and E.

M. Bliss that plied these waters around 1920.

Also in the early part of the century, several other factories were built in Sag Harbor. The big brick Watch Case factory was built on Hampton Road. It stands abandoned today. Sag Harbor Industries manufactured helicopter gas caps, and in the 1950s, Grumman Aerospace bought the old Bliss plant and made throttle assemblies for the lunar lander.

This writer, as a teenager, came to Sag Harbor for the first time in 1958. I drove around town, charmed by the narrow lanes and beautiful curving Main Street. Main Street had many boarded up stores. There were two dives in town, the Black Buoy and the Sandbar, out of which drunks were from time to time thrown out into the gutters. The American Hotel was in decrepit condition. And the few factories, Bulova, Grumman, Sag Harbor, were closing and moving their operations south, much to the chagrin of the residents. I remember blue collar workers, in hard hats and carrying lunch boxes, walking out after the noon whistle sounded, onto the sleepy Long Wharf for a bite of lunch. On the residential streets, the tiny and charming houses were in great disrepair, paint peeling, roofs with holes in them. You could buy a house for almost nothing; nobody wanted them.

From that low point, Sag Harbor slowly pulled herself up into the thriving historic tourist town that it is today. Almost all the houses have been lovingly restored. The Town's history is recounted with pride. And though the steeple of the Presbyterian Church blew down in the Hurricane of 1938, there are now restoration efforts underway to return it to its pedestal atop that old building.

The town is a triumph of a loving restoration now. The American Hotel was bought by Ted Conklin in the 1970s and returned to its former glory. The old Huntting mansion has become one of Long Island's great museums. And 12 years ago, The Bay Street Theater, a performing arts center with an international reputation, made its debut on Long Wharf in the old Bliss building. As for the Wharf itself and Main Street, it is a dazzling array of antique shops, fine restaurants, brick walks and chic clothing stores.

For many years, motorists on the Bridgehampton Turnpike, which leads into town, would pass a sign that read VILLAGE OF SAG HARBOR. Hanging under it was a smaller sign VISIT OUR MUSEUM. And in the fall, they would take down the smaller sign and replace it with a sign reading CLOSED.

I never did know if others were as amused as I was to see, after October, the sign reading VIL-LAGE OF SAG HARBOR. CLOSED. But you won't see it now. The town is thriving year around.

Enjoy it this weekend. Here are some things to do at the Harborfest.

The Harborfest begins on Friday, 6:30 p.m. with a traditional clambake at the Sag Harbor Whaling and Historical Museum. Tickets cost $55 and all proceeds benefit the museum. Watch the parade down main street at 9:30 Saturday morning, or participate in the weekend long whaleboat races. There are children,

Water Fight

40 East End Fire Departments Compete In Southampton

By Robin F. Smith

Muster: v.1. To summon and gather together; assemble in array. 2. To assemble under arms for review, parade, inspection or drill. 3. n. Any assemblage or large concourse of persons or animals.

I didn't know this until last Saturday. I looked it up in the dictionary on my way out the door to the 21st annual Antique Truck and Muster show in Southampton. When I first heard of the event, I expected a display of firearms, perhaps muskets? Along with the trucks, of course. Makes no sense, but it just sounded like that to me. Something from the Revolutionary War, maybe? As it turns out, it has nothing to do with firearms, but everything to do with firefighters. Big difference

Forty different fire companies from all over the island gathered in Agawam Park for a friendly competition, celebrating certain skills only held by firefighters and those who love them. Friends and family were in attendance as were junior competitors and the ladies' auxiliaries, also competing, as well as locals and tourists with their kids and their cameras. The firefighter had gathered the night before, camping out and sharing some camaraderie before the big day. The big day was leading to the big night, a pig roast and party on Cooper Beach, and, as the announcer said over the megaphone, "Let's get this going so we're not here too late, cutting into party time." The events began.

The first action event was the efficiency run. The juniors started out, on a course (the street) that had been slicked with water and closed off at the end with a small target. The object is to run with a hose, unravel it as a team, while moving down the road toward the target. Along the way, you must attach the hose to another hose to lengthen it, attach the completed hose to a hydrant, attach a nozzle to the hose, and then aim perfectly at the target before the water comes spraying out. All as fast as possible. The hose looked quite heavy and the road quite slippery, but only a few kids tripped and fell (that I saw at least) and the applause was loud as the target was sprayed over and over. In addition to applause, there was quite a bit of laughter as one team, I will not mention the name, had a problem attaching the nozzle to the hose before the water came rushing through. Good thing it turned out to be a warm and sunny day.

Simultaneously, the whaleboat competition was beginning. When I saw the size of the boats and the size of the men, I assumed this was to be a junior event only. I was wrong. How many firefighters can you fit in a whaleboat? The answer is four. To operate a whaleboat, you need two rowers, a bow person and a tiller-person to steer, and all four actually fit. What happens after the tight squeeze? It depends. If you were Sag Harbor, you gracefully pulled the two oars, and glided around the buoyed kegs to a big cheer and the best time of your heat. If you were the other competitors at this moment, you struggled with one broken oar, a bit of uncoordinated

The Sheltered Islander by Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander #265 #265 Skool Daze

Miss Price was the very mean spinster principal at Sayville Elementary School when I went there. One of her strictest rules was that nobody touched the supply cabinets in the back of the class without the teacher's permission. The supply cabinet contained paper, pencils, pens, black composition notebooks, erasers, protractors and everything a student needed for school. The school actually supplied school supplies — what a concept. No one ever really knew what would happen if someone did touch the supplies without permission. Since we all knew Miss Price could squeeze your arm so hard it would ache for an hour, it was an easy guess that if she was really mad, she could drive a protractor right through your heart. She was the most effective intimidating ruler since Vlad the Impaler.

We didn't buy a thing for school except clothes, and always a new pair of shoes. The only school supply I recall my mother buying was a brown book bag with a hard plastic handle. The book bag was so heavy, I had to use both hands to haul the case the 1.75 miles home. I always wished our house was just another quarter mile from the school so I could take the bus, but the rule was clear, under two miles from school, you walked. To carry a heavy bag that distance, I mastered the "half carry, half bounce ahead with my shin" technique. I remind you that this was before girls were allowed to wear pants to school, so I always wore knee socks which doubled as my shin guards. On winter days I wore tights and knee socks because that leather book bag froze solid and nearly broke my legs on several occasions. Without fail, everyone's book bag's plastic handle broke at some time during the school year. When you saw a small students wrangling a giant book bag under their arm, you just knew what happened. No sense in asking your mother for a new book bag. Every book bag had to last one school year, no exceptions. By the end of the year, there wasn't one intact plastic handle in the whole school.

When my kids started school, they all carried backpacks. I thought that was so clever and such a relief for small hands. But by third grade, the backpacks weighed as much as the kids. It still makes me angry that the kids have to carry so much weight they have to bend way forward when walking home so they can find a balance point - making them look like those villagers on the Discovery channel that carry a half ton of sticks in a bundle on their backs. Some mothers, better ones than me, have won out over the "cool" factor and have gotten their kids to use rolling backpacks which are the smartest idea since TIVO. I can't get my kids to use rolling backpacks yet, they're still too cool. I'll probably have to wait for a spinal cord injury to convince them to use common sense.

I'm buying all their school supplies now. It seems like parents are supplying more and more each year. I just know we'll be asked to pay a chair rental fee next year and a locker rental fee after that, which will evolve into paying a security deposit on the locker in event of damage. That will lead to paying security deposits on school books. Everyone knows you never get your whole security deposit back on anything so the school will discover a whole new source of revenue. Soon. they'll ask for a security deposit to accept your child into the school, period. For those of us with annoying children, this could be a good thing.

"Hello Ms. Flynn? This is the school calling. If you fail to pick up your child in June, you will not get your student security deposit back. Also, your child will be kept here for the whole summer. Hello? Hello? Ms. Flynn? Are you there?"

I'm sure now there'll be a "books for Iraq" drive next and we'll have to contribute to that. The 87 billion dollars the president asked to rebuild Iraq will not cover any school supplies, rowing and a very long journey over a rather short distance.

Other events were the bucket brigade, in which teams move 50 gallons of water in buckets from a dip tank up to a roof, where they pour it down the gutter into a waiting drum. The team that moves it the fastest wins. Then there was the midnight alarm, a race that requires participants to get up from their beds at the sound of an alarm, jump up and get dressed in their gear, jump on and off the truck, hook the coupling to the hose, hook the nozzle onto the hose and cross the finish

The final event was the antique trucks lake pump or lake drafting competition. At 10 a.m. the really beautiful antique fire trucks had been paraded down the street, past a group of judges who were looking for the best original and best restored antique apparatus. A few hours later the trucks were put to the test. The antique trucks, each one from a participating fire department, took a turn pulling a certain amount of water out of the lake and pumping it back again. The fastest one wins. One incredible sight was a truck from 1906, a coal burning antique from East Hampton that was originally pulled by a horse. Today it blew thick black smoke into the air, indicating that the water was actually being pumped by the energy from the burning coal, and it was amazing.

I spoke with Robert Guyer, a Bridgehampton firefighter who had come in 2nd in lake drafting last year. He wasn't too confident about winning this year, because the equipment did not seem up to par, but he was looking forward to his plans later that evening...attending a formal ceremony honoring his achievement as Fireman of the Year 2002 for his town. Although he already had the award, he was looking forward to the evening of accepting the accolades and being photographed with those who were gathering to applaud his accomplishments. Even though he was missing the pig roast, he was thrilled about the day, and was a great example of the spirit of the muster. Not only is Mr. Guyer a firefighter of 9 years, but he is also part of the volunteer ambulance squad and volunteer rescue squad in Bridgehampton. An all around good guy. He has been coming to the muster since he was 5 years old.

This year there were many 5 year olds, and kids of all ages who seemed to love the bright red trucks, the noisy sprays of water into the lake, and the shouts of the participants. But what was most noticeable was the enthusiasm coming from the adults. I spoke with many people and every one of them was exploding with excitement about the day. People could not say enough about the importance of the event to their local communities, about the importance of supporting our fire departments, and of course, about all of the food and fun that was happening at the moment. I honestly couldn't believe the folks pushing their way towards me, all wanting to explain why this was such a great day.

The Chairman of the Muster, Steve Phillips, a firefighter from Southampton, put it this way. "We're here to put on a show so that everyone has somewhere to come to celebrate their devoted fire departments. It means so much to us to have a competition where everyone is doing their best. It's great to see how they react to competing."

Multiple awards were won in 1st, 2nd and 3rd place categories by several fire departments. Among them were: North Patchogue with 9, Bellmore with 4, Eastport with 4, and Hampton Bays with 3. All in all 50 trophies were handed out but it was obvious that everyone involved was a winner.

women's and men's divisions, and each team is made up of 5 members. Rowers can call the Sag Harbor Chamber of Commerce to register; boats are provided. Also on Saturday are historic walking tours, a children's fair on the grounds of the Old Custom House, a classic boat regatta at noon, and an antique car exhibit from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. All day long, tours of the "Agnes," a replica of a 19th century pilot cutter, are offered. It is docked at the Sag Harbor Yacht Club throughout Harborfest. Speaking of boats, a boat building demonstration will take place on Long Wharf Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

On Sunday, start your day at the Fire Department Pancake Breakfast at the Columbia Street Fire house, and later on, stop by a Taste of Sag Harbor Food Fair also on Long Wharf, where local restaurants, caterers, and wineries offer free samples. If you are feeling particularly competitive, enter the biggest clam contest or make the best corn relish, tomato salad, strawberry jam or clam chowder and win a prize. If you are feeling competitive and very strong, and not too full from all of the indulging up to this point, enter the tug-o-war contest at the Windmill. It's probably been a long time since most of us have done that! Conclude with the seafood theme at the annual clam-shucking contest on Sunday at 4 p.m. on the village's Long Wharf, and then applaud your friends and neighbors (or yourself!) at the awards ceremony that follows.

THE OLD AND NEW AT ASHAWAGH HALL

While the current group exhibit at Ashawagh Hall features familiar faces, some artists have gone in different directions. The bottom line? For the most part, such endeavors prove worthy. Dennis Leri's assemblages, straight from the Crazy Monkey show, continue his new series using metal material. One standout is "New York DeCafe," a work that lends itself to references and "signs" associated with semiology. Thus, the fragments of coffee cans can signify Manhattan's shattered demeanor after 9-11 or the fact that New Yorkers owe their stamina to Decafe coffee.

Abby Abrams has taken a different path from the past as well: from bronze to watercolors; sculpture to drawings. Even though such a departure is an extreme one, there's still Ms. Abrams focus on form, posture (attitude) and fullness of concept.

Eric Ernst's work may still deal with Surrealism in its fragmentation, yet his

"She Dreamt She Was Alone in a Parking Lot" conveys a divergent-thematic thrust, namely its sexual statement. Mr. Ernst has imaginatively reversed the shapes of his female's organs, displacing the genital area with odd rectangular forms pierced with lines.

Is the implication that she was raped, considering the work's title? Disconcertion would certainly be > appropriate, therefore, if this were the case, when organs seem not only maligned but also subject to misalliance.

> David Slater's bold paintings, while still continuing his political messages, are more aggressive with the anti - Bush piece and Mr. Slater's equally bold text: "Son of a Bush" and the title, "You Can't S-t the Eagle." This critic also "Saddam likes his Hussein Coupe Stick." While the pole-like form is not new, Mr. Slater's braided material is certainly clever and appro real "hoot," showing a mannequin's bust juxtaposed various Hampton locations, including Montauk's lighthouse. The title of her pieces, "Carolee Does the Hamptons," is both witty and satiric. We wish the photos would have been bigger, although that might have ruined the effect.

Elisca Jeansonne's home made paper pieces are arresting as well, with their subtle use of materials and colors. Forms may be misshappen, but they are facts of nature. Trish Franey's thoughful paintings also feature misshappen people and animals, but the point is perhaps that they are outcasts, not originating from nature. We particularly like her "Mannie, Moe and Zack."

Phyllis Hammond's bronze sculpture juxtaposes diverse, even mishappen forms as well in "Excavations," an especially evocative work with religious implications. Juxtaposition of women with animals has a less subtle meaning, however, in Phyllis Kriegel's paintings which directly relate to the mythic relationship between the female figure and bulls, for example.

The show will be on view at Ashawagh Hall until Sept. 21.

CRITIC'S CHOICE: "Artists on Film" series continues on Sept. 19 with "Great Expectation" with Gwyneth Paltrow and Robert DeNiro at the Ross School at 7 p.m. Call 324-4929.

Honoring the Artist: Ian Hornak

This week's cover is a special one, not only because the artist, Ian Hornak, has died, but also because its style is uniquely described as "Fantastic Realism." Such labels are not applied very often to contemporary works.

The term "Fantastic Realism" was offered by gallery owner Arlene Bujese who showed Mr. Hornak's work for many years in the Hamptons. We can see her point: his style is bigger than life, stylized still lifes oozing with sensuality. We want to actually taste the wine and cheese and simultaneously simply experience their beauty. We are both participants and observers.

Ms. Bujese supplied further insights regarding Mr. Hornak's aesthetics: "There was nothing facile about Ian's work. He didn't use airbrushes or anything like that to achieve his effects. They were sheer beauty. Each painting meant a great deal to him.

Each one made a philosophical and/or aesthetic statement. Each curl of a ribbon, the placement of a butterfly, it all means some-

Ms. Bujese continued. "I really can't compare Ian's work to anyone else's, although I do know he was influenced by Heade. He worked with a broad range of media, being talented in drawing and etchings. And during his career, he did diverse subjects, too, like representational landscapes and portraits."

Mr. Hornak was special in personal as well as professional ways, according to one good friend, Eleanor "Chip" Leaver, herself an artist. "I first met Ian in 1986 when we had a meeting of what is now The Artists Alliance of East Hampton. I was the first President, and he was an officer. We saw each other often because he would come to my home for meetings. We had lots of fun together and discovered we had so much in common, despite the fact that there was an age and gender difference.

"Our love of cooking led us to meet twice a week to cook together. I loved to listen to his great collection of classical music, too. Gardening was another interest we shared. He knew the names of every plant on earth, I bet. I would go to Florida where he lived during the winter, and he would take me to beautiful tropical gardens. We'd sit by the ocean at night, both there and here, and enjoy its beauty. I became a member of his

There are many people who felt similarly close to Ian Hornak, not only because of his gentle, kind demeanor, but because of his paintings as well.

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood In The Hamptons

Smack! And darn! Getting spanked in the eyes by the offbeat can smart when trying to keep up-to-date in a restless time. It's a time when grown men wear stuff that made the "Dead End Kids" hooligans. Huntz Hall's skewed and tired baseball cap has set the high standard for men and, with young women, the lowering of jeans to the pubic area was pushed further by a very young salesperson who came to help me with the top buttons undone. Smack! That one really stung because it re-whacked the seeing of Thirteen, the smack heard around the world, as far as I'm concerned.

The frightfully furious film by Catherine Hardwicke, literally pushes its own intensity into a tumultuous coming of age recklessness. With almost unbelievable skill, the young actress, Evan Rachel Wood, projects the hellish progression of a seventh grader determined to take her place in the mainstream of pop culture. Ms. Wood's characterization of Tracy, the Los Angeles cutie who goes from sad to bad, carries the transformation with such piercing authenticity, she is a dashing essence of a documentary, more real than the actual sleaze parlors of body piercing, tattooing and whorish addictions. She shops and buys danger with the same needs of other consumption-consumed customers of downtown boutiques. She quickly takes on the attitude of spiteful cruelty and sexy centrist positioning. She is in the in-crowd and cut out of her past. On the cutting room floor is her hippie mom. Her loving, divorced mother is resented for many reasons. She reaches out to ex-addicts like herself and her boyfriend, Jeremy Sisto and struggles to raise Tracy with her meager home hairdresser income. Holly Hunter's performance as the mother fits with Ms. Wood's as closely and as warmly as two clenched hands. The sadness of the relationship, which is as off-putting as it is needy, takes some of those smacks to the heart.

Tracey's quest for a hot, rock and roll hellish spot in the world of rituals-as-performance, begins with plain, still uncool Tracey eyeing Evie, the most popular girl in the school, smiling and assured and studded with a belly button ring. Their differences hit Tracey like a sledge. She is instantly hooked on the lifestyle. The role model, Evie, is played by Nikki Reed, whose 13th year experiences, combined into Hardwicke's script, make the film Thirteen, quite remarkable.

The dark chambers of this film start with Tracy stealing a wallet. Where it goes from there may seem easy to imagine as seen in lurid articles on the subject until you experience the grim, slashing, whipping away of civility and, in its stead, delinquency, smeared with the smirking deviltry of self-idolization.

This moving picture is a rare thing: A commentary on the culture that demands hooked-on members of the pack, who, in a youth crazed society, would subjugate personal identity to group standards. If you aren't one of us, you're out there - left in a void of dotty individuals. Tracey chooses a chancy group to hang with, slipping jeans and, all. The "Dead End Kids" soon left their Dead End status and, with somewhere to go to, became the "Bowery Boys" - a station that befit their attire. The places Tracy and Evie go include, masochistic selfmutilation and more. I won't go there.

ENTERTAINMENT IN THE HAMPTONS

Take Five 2003 with Jan Silver

There are several new theatrical presentations here and this is Sag Harborfest weekend. This is also Cartier Grand Slam Tennis Tournament weekend, a fundraiser for the American Cancer Society, where John McEnroe will be honored. There are also interesting speakers and good musicians playing this week, so read on for details:

THEATER

A new theater piece, Open Call, is having a preview at Guild Hall, East Hampton, this Friday and Saturday, 8 p.m., before opening Off Off Broadway this fall. It is a behind-the-scenes look at how a show is cast. Both professional and amateur singers, dancers, comedians and specialty acts will be "trying out" for the audience. The show is created by Patricia Watt (co-producer Love, Janis) and Randy Weiner (The Donkey Show, The Karaoke Show). Tickets are $25 for Friday evening and $75-250 on Saturday which is a benefit for East End Hospice: call the box office at (631) 324-4050.

On Sunday, 6 p.m. (note early curtain time) at Guild Hall, Jim Larocca's war drama Penang, which was to have a staged reading on blackout night, will finally be heard. Popular WLIU-FM personality Bonnie Grice narrates the show which has a professional cast. The playwright, a Renaissance man who is a Southampton College professor, a member of Dramatists' Guild, chairman of the Long Island Nature Conservancy, an attorney, and a former member of two NYS governors' cabinets, served two tours of duty in Vietnam. Tickets are $18-20 at the Guild Hall box office (631-324-4050).

Maria Pessino-Rothwell's Oddfellows Playhouse presents a site-specific performance piece, Systole and Diastole: Chambers of the Heart, at LongHouse Reserve, East Hampton, on Saturday at 5:30 p.m. This is an end-of-season celebration for the beautiful gardens of LongHouse, which will open at 5 p.m. A reception follows the performance. For tickets ($50), call Joanne at 631-329-3568 or e-mail her at Joanne@longhouse.org.

The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center has an unusual circus. Gregory Popovich's Comedy Pet Theatre will give two performances this Saturday, at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. Popovich, a famous Moscow Circus acrobat, juggler and clown, has trained 14 dogs and cats (rescued from animal shelters!) for this show. Tickets are $40-45 adults, $15-20 for children and can be purchased at the WHBPAC box office (631-288-1500). Next Thursday, Hampton Theatre Company opens its fall play Lobby Hero for a run through October 5 at WHBPAC. The comedy by Kenneth Lonergan was a hit Off Broadway in 2001.

Bellport's Gateway Playhouse presents the Maury Yeston/Arthur Kopit musical Phantom through September 27. For tickets, call 631-286-1133 or 1-888-4TIXNOW.

MUSIC

There are several good performers at local clubs and restaurants this week. At Amagansett's Stephen Talkhouse, NRBQ rocks on Sat. and the celtic rock band Seven Nations plays on Sun. Jane Hastay and Peter Martin Weiss perform pop standards Fri. at East Hampton's Maidstone Arms and Todd Michaels is there on Sat. In Sag Harbor, Hunky Page plays light jazz and pop standards on weekends at the American Hotel, and Jim Turner plays blues Sunday at Peter Miller's. In Bridgehampton, Kipling's Trio plays soft jazz and pop standards on weekends and the Stefanie Cardinali group performs hot & cool jazz at World Pie (Sun. brunch) and Pierre's (Sun. eve). In Southampton, there's good music at Belle's East, and in East Quogue at New Moon Café.

SPEAKERS

A.M. Homes will read from her short story collection Things You Should Know at BookHampton,

East Hampton, on Saturday at 5:30 p.m. Historian Richard Barons will discuss "American Harbor Houses" at Canio's Books, Sag Harbor, on Saturday at 6 p.m. On Sunday, 3 p.m. at Southampton's

Rogers Memoral Library, poets Anna Rabinowitz, Star Black and Kathryn Levy will read from their work (no charge, but please reserve a seat by calling 631-283-0774 ext. 523).

Fordham Univ. professor Father Donald J. Moore, will talk about the impact of Christian Zionists on the Palestinian-Israeli conflict at the Siena Spirituality Center, Villa Maria in Water Mill on Saturday, 4 p.m.

BENEFITS AND SPECIAL EVENTS

This is Cartier Grand Slam Tennis weekend, a benefit for the local chapter of the American Cancer Society. There is an open, mixed-doubles tennis tournament on Saturday and Sunday, an elegant cocktail party at Pacific East, Amagansett, on Saturday starting at 6:30 p.m. (with a raffle of luxury items, a live auction, and presentation of the Cartier Tennis Legend award to John McEnroe), and an awards luncheon after competition on Sunday. For a minimum bid of $5,000, two aspiring players even get to play an exhibition match Saturday afternoon with Johnny Mac. Tickets are $350 for players and include three meals and a luxury gift bag; $150 for the gala only includes the gift bag.

Call 631-287-1270 or mschwenk@cancer.org.

Sag Harborfest weekend features a parade, boat building demonstration, the children's fair, a tour of Eastville, boat parade, and whaleboat races. Friday evening, there's a clambake at the Customs House to benefit the Sag Harbor Chamber of Commerce. Call the Chamber for tickets.

Shop 'til You Drop....With Maria Tennariello

It was a toss up between the beach and shopping this past weekend. So I did a little of both. Let's do some shopping!

Westhampton Beach is having a sidewalk sale this coming weekend. This is an annual shopping event, not to be missed.

Just in time for the cooler weather, Southampton's Little Lucy's on Jobs Lane will be introducing their new fall line of luxurious sweaters, coats, carriers and casual wear, along with the premiere of Cindy Adams' Jazzy Couture – Live! This is all happening on Saturday, September 20 and it's an all day event, so mark your calendar. There will be prizes; autographs and lots of fun for everyone...See you there!

Also on Jobs Lane (28C), check out the big blowout sale that Biba Southampton is having from Friday, September 12 through Sunday, September 14. Biba is closing her Southampton store for good and all the merchandise is priced from $20 to $50, everything must go! There is so much stuff here; you will not leave without a shopping bag full. No kidding!

Taman Batu-Southampton

On Hampton Road in Southampton, artistry in flowers does weekly deliveries for your home or office and fall parties. They have fresh imported flowers, blooming plants, tropical plants, orchids, silk flowers and trees, latex and mylar balloon bouquets and much more.

You must stop off at Taman Batu on County Road 39 in Southampton, (opposite Casual Home) to save thousands of dollars on their "End of Summer Sale." There is 50% off all statuary, indoor/outdoor teak furniture, and other selected merchandise. Stock up, before you know it, spring will be here. I wish!

Donna Parker Antiques on the Montauk Highway in Water Mill is having a store-wide sale going on right now on French, Italian and Scandinavian antiques with 15% to 50% off. The store is filled with beautiful merchandise for all types of homes

The prices have been slashed again at Portico in Bridgehampton. Look for their store closing (Bridgehampton location only) with reductions from 35% to 60% off on candles, beach, bath, hand towels, new furniture and accessories. They also carry area rugs, lamps, mirrors, beds, sofas, chairs, tables, and so much more.

English Country Antiques is having a 20% off lighting sale at all three locations; Bridgehampton, Southampton and East Hampton. Check it out!

Briggs House Antiques at the Bulls Head Inn on Montauk Highway in Bridgehampton is having a grand opening sale. Look for English, French, Irish, decorations reproductions.

Nancy & Co. on Main Street in Bridgehampton is having a summer blowout sale of $5 to $100. Nancy has new merchandise delivered daily, so stop in and see for yourself.

Dalson Station on Main Street in Bridgehampton is having a 20% to 50% off selected home accents and 50% off ladies cotton casuals.

Aboff's located in East Hampton is doing a 35% off all wallcovering sale and $5 off top quality Benjamin Moore paints. Now is the time to get starting spiffing up the house for the fall and holiday season. All locations are doing this sale, so get going...

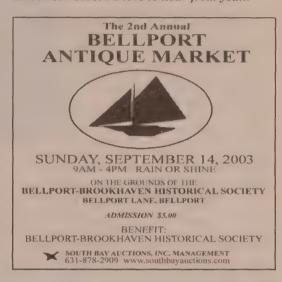

At Coconuts Boutique on Newtown Lane in East

Hampton you will find a cool 25% off jeans just in time for fall. This shop has a nice selection of bathing suits, sandals, workout clothing and so much more.

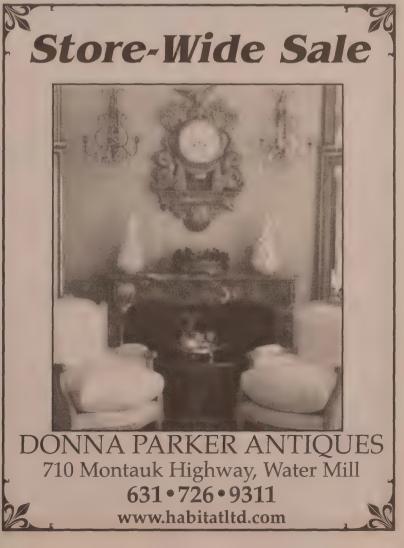

At Home En Provence on Tuthill Road in Montauk is having a cool summer sale on summer merchandise, furniture, floor samples and more. Look for their complimentary wine tasting on Saturdays from 2 to 4 p.m. You will also find some unique home décor, apparel, accessories and giftware here. And coming soon...is their new holiday shop...Stay tuned!

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Indian Summer Shopping!

If you know of, or are having any sales and would like to share them with me, or have any questions regarding the shops or sales, please email me at shoptil@danspapers.com or fax me at: 631-537-3330. I'd love to hear from you...

HOME FOR THE SUMMER... By David Lion RATTINER

I am sitting on a train right now heading down for Washington D.C. for a weekend with my friend John. John is a senior at Mary Washington College in Virginia. The plan, as of right now, is that he is going to pick me up at the train station in Washington D.C. and then drive to Fredericksburg to his house, which is just off of campus. I am told that it is practically on campus. I'm really excited about this whole weekend.

Supposedly, John's house is just like the house in the movie Animal House. He has told me that he has been having parties at the house for the past two weeks and that so far, all of them have been pretty good. He is convinced that this weekend, in particular, is going to be the best one yet. The reason for this is one word sand. The plan is to go and get sand at Home Depot along with a tarp. We will then fill his kitchen wall to wall with sand and have a beach party. Apparently he knows a sand guy who can get him a good price.

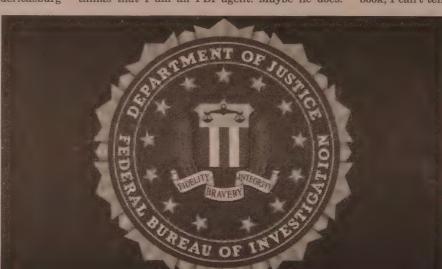

On the train, there is a guy in front of me typing away feverishly at his computer. I wonder what the heck he is typing? I wonder if he is an FBI agent working on a report. Maybe he is a serial-killer profiler. He looks pretty important. He has his dress shirt and tie and looks very serious. Next to him is a bag - it's neither a backpack nor a briefcase. I guess you can call it a computer bag. I am looking at him as I am typing this article watching his every move. I can't believe that I am sitting next to an FBI agent.

John plans on becoming an FBI agent one day. I think that is pretty cool. He is going to be an FBI agent just like the guy next to me. I am completely convinced that he is an FBI agent. He looks just like an FBI agent. I want to ask him if he is an FBI agent but of course I won't, I'm too embarrassed to

I wonder what he thinks of me? I wonder if he thinks that I am an FBI agent. Maybe he does.

Maybe he thinks I am undercover and that is why I am in jeans and a T-shirt. Maybe he is criminal and is doing his best to look normal in front of me, which, ironically, is making him look like an FBI

He probably thinks that I am a student who is working on a report. He thinks that I am a geek and that I go to George Washington University. I wonder if he is even thinking about me at all? He seems to be really immersed in his work. I wonder if he is married? He seems like he could be married. He is certainly old enough. He has all of his hair; there is a little grey though. He is in pretty good shape, obviously he works out or does something (like chase criminals) to stay in shape.

There is another guy in front of me reading a book; I can't tell what book, however. It is a pretty > thick book, obviously he is a smart guy if he is willing to actually even attempt to read a book that thick. Personally, I never pick up a book that is more than three hundred pages long. That just seems ridiculous to me. Reading a book that thick is just a waste of time for me. My attention span is way too small. In fact, anything that is over two hundred kind of makes me mad. It's like, finish up already dude, I'm reading this thing, aren't I?

> I wish I was as important as these guys on the train. Obviously, they are rich if they are on this train. They have to be rich if they are riding this train; this is an expensive train. I'm on this train, although I am not rich, but I am an exception because I really want to get to Washington as fast as I can and this is the only way I know how to get down there. I wonder if these guys around me think that I am rich? Appearances are so weird. If you just act a certain way people will assume so much about you. The second I stop typing this article, both of these guys are going to think that I am lazy. They are going to think that I should utilize this train time to type/work more. What do I care what they think?

CLASSIC CARS

TRACTORS TO FERRARIS

Several months ago, this paper had front cover artwork that featured a beautiful rendering of an antique tomato red Massey Harris farm tractor. The various types of vehicles that people collect have always been of interest to me.

There is a very strong collector following for farm tractors. They are more American than apple pie, and visually conjure up images of the farms on the eastern end of Long Island, and of course, the vast expanses of farmland in the Midwest.

When restored to perfection, tractors are quite interesting objects of automotive art. With their giant rear wheels and little front wheels, they take on the appearance of drag racers from an alternate universe. They are a little like motorcycles, in the sense that all of the machinery powering them is exposed.

Speaking of motorcycles, it's a fact that this segment of vehicle collecting is probably the fastest growing percentage of the hobby. Many, years ago, Steve McQueen, a car nut if there ever was one, had a large collection of vintage motorcycles. He was ahead of his time. He also collected race cars and vintage biplanes.

Part of the appeal of motorcycle collecting is that for the cost of one vintage Ferrari, you could have a whole slew of vintage bikes. It's also easier to fit them in your garage.

Truck collections are hot. Every month, Hemmings Collector Car Magazine has a whole section devoted to truck sales and parts. The biggest selling new vehicle in America for many years has been the Ford F150 pick-up truck, which certainly attests to the popularity of the truck in

West

Westhampton

East Quoque

Hampton Bays

America. They are certainly very collectable. I've fallen for their vintage charms, having owned both a '51 and '56 Chevrolet step-side pick-up. Mine weren't show quality, so they were actually quite useful for all sorts of odd jobs around the

Some collectors collect only muscle cars. I recently received an e-mail from a fellow in Remsenburg who had about ten of them. Jim McCarthy, a builder who at one time lived in Remsenburg, also collected muscle cars. He told me a tale about how one day he received a call from Reggie Jackson, who wanted to buy one of his muscle cars. (Jackson has one of the finest muscle car collections in the United States.) McCarthy said it took about fifteen minutes of convincing for Reggie Jackson to make him believe that it was really Jackson himself on the telephone. Mc Carthy thought that it was one of his friends goofing around. Yeah, Jim sold him the car.

Note: I knew of an R type 427 Cobra and a oneoff Duesenburg hidden in a barn in the sleepy hamlet of Remsenburg. That place rules.

There's a scene in the original Indiana Jones movie where the Nazi German archaeologist pulls out a pocket watch, shows it to Indy, and says," You see this watch, bury it in the sand, and in one thousand years it will be worth a fortune". That statement about sums up collecting anything, from cars to watches. By the way, watch collecting is very big right now.

Obviously, the rarer and more desirable an automobile was when it was produced, the more valuable it will be as a collectible. For that simple reason, race cars are valuable, because very few of them were made. So many people collect only race cars.

Wood station wagons of the '30s, '40s and '50s have shown terrific collector evaluation and in most cases have become the most valuable cars of their era. The reason is that very few survived, because even when they were relatively new, their real wood exteriors would rot from sun and rain exposure.

There are collectors who accumulate only military vehicles. Army Jeeps are the most popular, but don't kid yourself, some of these guys own halftracks and tanks. The old Tank Museum in Mattituck had one of the best private military collections in the world.

There are Ford only collectors, and Chevy guys. Mopar guys and Porsche people. None of these collectors talk to each other. In fact, I've see Ford guys wearing T shirts that exclaim, " On a quiet night you can hear a Chevy rusting".

Then there are the Ferrari collectors. They live and breathe in a rarified atmosphere where everything is green, from grass to money to envy. Surprisingly, all their cars are red. They are impossible to talk to, as they all have unlisted telephone numbers. They are the only group of people I know that even ignore the ringing of their cell phones.

I started this article talking about collecting farm tractors, and ended discussing Ferrari collectors. Which goes to prove, that in the weird world of automobile collecting, there's something for

2nd Annual Oktoberfest at Martha Clara Vineyards Mattituck, September 13 & 14

"Crown Prince Ludwig, later to become King Ludwig I, was married to Princess Therese of Saxony-Hildburghausen on October 12 in 1810. The citizens of Munich were invited to attend the festivities held on the fields in front of the city gates to celebrate the happy royal event. Horse races in the presence of the Royal Family marked the close of the event that was celebrated as a festival for the whole of Bayaria. The decision to repeat the horse races in the subsequent year gave rise to the tradition of the Oktoberfest.

"In the first few decades the choice of amusements was sparse. The first carousel and two swings were set up in 1818. Visitors were able to quench their thirst at small beer stands, which grew rapidly in number. In 1896 the beer stands were replaced by the first beer tents and halls set up by enterprising landlords with the backing of the breweries.

"Today, the Oktoberfest in Germany is the largest festival in the world, with an international flavor characteristic of the 21st century. Over 6 million visitors from all around the world converge on the Oktoberfest each year."*

Celebrate this wonderful tradition right here on the North Fork at Martha Clara Vineyards this Saturday and Sunday, September 13 and 14. Enjoy authentic German food, music, dancers, beer and wine. Dance the afternoon away with the Kapella Fellas! Children welcome. Please call in advance to reserve tickets while they last. Admission: $5 in advance/$10 at the door. food and drink are additional. Event takes place rain or shine. To purchase tickets please call 631-298-0075 ext. 13. Sorry no refunds.

North Fork Environmental Council Fundraiser At Hallockville Museum, Mattituck, September 13

Join John and Nikki Perry of Catering ByA Small Affair at the beautifully renovated Hallockville barn on Route 48 in Mattituck for this annual fundraiser. This is the fifth consecutive year that the catering company has had the distinct honor of catering the event. It is a silent auction/fundraiser, which is co-sponsored this year by Keyspan energy, to benefit the entire North Fork community. North Fork Environmental Council is an established organization dedicated to fighting for the preservation of our land, waters, and environment.For further information, contact NFEC director Debbie O'Kane at 298-8880.

Walking (And Flying) On The Wild Side

What's In Store At Gloria Greco's Wild Things Studios In Southold

Hunt at the Vineyard

"The Penthouse"

"Double Trouble"

By Linda Azize

The art at Wild Things Studios evokes the great sense of strength and physical beauty found in nature. Artist Gloria Greco, who opened her studio in Southold's Feather Hill Shopping Center, grew up on Suffolk's north shore in the beautiful village of St. James. It was there that her fascination for wildlife and nature became evident, and a passion and commitment to the wild kingdom emerged.

This theme was present in her artwork even at an early age. Almost completely self taught and with a devotion to realism, Gloria has developed a versatile and unique style, capturing nature and wildlife at its best. She has developed her skills in oil and watercolor as well as in ink and pencil renderings, scratchboard, and pastels.

Gloria spent a few years in the Florida Keys, and there she became well known for her paintings of native wildcats. The artist then returned to New York and now lives in Mattituck, where she continues to pursue her art career. Images of the beautiful North Fork of Long Island hang side by side with sensuous > images of bobcats and the endangered Florida panther in the gallery space. In "Hunt at the Vineyard," a red tail hawk pauses on a post amidst grapevines, and in the amusingly titled "The Penthouse," a pair of osprey perch high on their nest atop a pole. A ruby throated hummingbird, the only variety of hummer that migrates to the East End, hovers over red blossoms on another wall, and "Northern Drifter" captures an incredible snowy owl alighting on a piece of driftwood on the beach.

Although not native to the North Fork, wolves also inspire this artist. In "First Day Out," a mother wolf watches carefully as her tiny cubs venture forth, and, doubtless inspired from her days spent in the south,

"Cypress Bobcat," resplendent in its speckled coat, lounges on a fallen branch in a swamp. But the image that captured me most was a painting called "Seizing the Moment," which features a leopard stalking brilliantly through a sunlit jungle. It reminded me of the Latin phrase "carpe diem," of the importance of "seizing the day." Every day opportunities await us and we must decide, just like the leopard, whether to play it safe or take a chance.

Gloria's love for animals and respect for all living things are always present in her art, which she describes as being created "with nature's inspiration." Another skill Gloria invests in is her handmade crafts, also on display at the studio.

If you love animals and appreciate wonderful images, visit Gloria at Wild Things Studios, call (631) 765-WILD, or visit her website at www.wildthingsstudios.com. You will love her amazing work.

A Harvest of Time

Pumpkins, squash, apples, wine. Fall's East End bounty makes summer's departure so much easier to bear. Despite the grumblings of weather people that we are overdue for a full blown tropical storm, all is calm for the moment as grapes ripen under their nets and large orange orbs appear amidst the giant leaves of pumpkin plants. Though potato farmers are preparing to dig this year's crop in earnest, tomatoes are still juicy and sweet corn still sweet. Summer's long farewell will linger, as it always does, even as days grow short and moonlit dips in the bay turn to memories.

2002 North Fork Best of the Best Winners

A-Appetizers, B-Brunch, D-Décor, F-Duck Dish, I-Italian Cuisine, P-Shellfish Dish, R-Salad, T-Soft-shell Crabs, V-Wine List.

Bayview Inn & Restaurant. Culinary fireworks from a new sparkler facing Peconic Bay. The historic Bayview has undergone many identity changes since its inception as an 1860's boutique hotel. Owners Bob and Pat Patchell have restored its original spirit, with seven guestrooms and the North Fork's most exciting new dining room. Thomas Lopez creates separate specials menus, complementing his regular card of winners like spinach pasta with chunky lobster, Asian-style breast of duck, and marinated lamb chops in mint demi-glace. Scrumptious desserts and a kid's menu ensure everyone goes home (or upstairs) happy. South Jamesport Ave. and Front Street, South Jamesport. 722-2659. Entrees, $18-$26. (Trueman-Honey, 8/1/03).

Cooperage Inn. With a beautiful new look emphasizing the cooperage theme, this charmer continues to carry the banner of North Fork cuisine. Chef/owner Jonathan Perkins, along with chefs Laimo and Hegeman, produce inspired appetizers such as rare sesame tuna carpaccio and pan-seared fresh mozzarella, and don't miss the sesame crusted calamari served over field greens with a soy vinaigrette. Steaks are steakhouse worthy, and the rigatoni ala vodka continues to dazzle. Fish here is always pristine and cooked with a light hand. Entrees $15.50-$30. 2218 Sound Ave. Baiting Hollow. 727-8994. (Simm,

1/10/03), JE

Desmond's Pub & Restaurant at the Inn at East Wind. The North Fork's new destination hotel hosts an elegant and restful dining room serving excellent a la carte dishes and classic pub fare. Executive chef Richard Laurelli's daily specials are consistent standouts, as evidenced by his chilled vegetable soup with lobster meat, as well as the Andalusia-style beef and chicken tapas. Pub favorites like crisply battered cod and chips hit the mark and familiar entrees like grilled lamb chops are perfectly prepared. The wine list is sensibly priced, though short on local vintages. Blueberry creme brulee was an inventive and winning update on a classic dessert. Entrees, $16-$26. $720 Rt. 25A, Wading River. 929-3500. (Bradbrook, 8/29/03)

Fauna. A hip and elegant culinary gem. Co-owner and consulting chef Mark Mittelman's menu astutely incorporates Asian influences into superbly conceived New American dishes. Tuna sashimi shines as an appetizer, as does duck confit atop sautéed spinach with walnuts and dried cranberries. Try and find room for the butternut squash pot stickers. The all-star cast of entrees includes Southeast Asian steak salad, pan-roasted bourbon chicken and a Napoleon of roasted vegetables. Desserts rotate daily. Extensive wine list with sixteen local vineyards. Entrees $20-$26. Route 25, Aquebogue. 722-5813. (Trueman-Honey, 6/7/02). [A,F]

La Plage. Exciting and imaginative haute cuisine just steps away from a Long Island Sound beach. Chef/owner Wayne Wadington's menu undergoes constant revision, reflecting his selection of premium ingredients or his latest inspiration for a sauce. His creations fly off the menu almost as quickly as off the plate, but if you have the chance, put in for the Yukon Gold potato soup with an oyster beignet, the roulade of local crab with succulent micro greens or the Griggstown Farm quail in smoked bacon. Superb wine list. Exceptional desserts. Entrees $22-33. 131 Creek Road, Wading River. 744-9200. (Bradbrook, 11/1/102). [R,V]

Modern Snack Bar. Home-cooked meals away from home await you at this charming family-run restaurant operating since 1950. Wittmeier brothers' time-honored menu contains dishes too good to go out of style. Delectable sauerbraten is perfectly tender and the stuffed cabbage very good. Duck breast salad, recently introduced, is another winner. Crab cakes and lobster salad are real treats, but the big surprise is the world-class shrimp and crabmeat quiche. Home-baked desserts are splendid and their take-out pie business is brisk. Wines are mostly limited to local vintages. Reservations not needed, but day or night, it's always a crowded house. Entrees, $9-$17. Rt. 25 Aquebogue. 722-3655. (Bradbrook, 10/4/02). [T]

Sultan's Kitchen. At last, a good, authentic Eastern Mediterranean for the region. The emphasis is on Turkish cooking, one of the world's healthiest cuisines. The spacious dining room is non-descript, as this is a former pancake emporium; the subtleties are all in the flavoring of the food. Soups such as red lentil and tripe are spiced just right. The varied appetizers favor vegetarians while the main courses concentrate on lamb and chicken, often with delectable results. Turkish baklava and kadayif are exceptional finishing touches. Entrees $6.50-$15.95. 1077 Old Country Road, Riverhead. 369-9766. (Bradbrook, 8/9/02.)

Tuscan House. Your table is yours for the evening at this elegant, upscale Italian. Authentic, classical dishes bear the deft touch of chef William Oster. His fish is exceptionally fresh and his osso bucco masterly. But his virtuosity lies in the care with which he pairs his 16 pastas and his sublime sauces. The results range from delicate to intense. Pappardelle with a puree of beans dressed with soppresata, fresh chilies, garlic and parmigiano reggiano is typically adventurous and winning. The dessert tray is filled with excellent choices. Well-chosen wines, emphasis on regional Italians. 673 Osborn Ave., Riverhead. 727-2330. (Bradbrook, 9/7/01). [I] Tweed's. Owner Ed Tuccio parlayed his interests in history, Americana and the bison to create this unique eatery. The décor puts one in mind of an expensive turn-of-the-century men's club, but with a romantic twist. Notable appetizers include Oysters Portland, enveloped in sautéed leeks and crisp bacon, and the Bistro Salad, redolent of blue cheese and roasted beets. Aside from Tweed's excellent specialty of the house, succulent farm-raised bison, also recommended are the Sashimi Sesame Tuna, carb-free vegetable lasagna, and Duck Two Ways. Don't skip dessert: the pastry chef is a graduate of the Cordon Bleu in London.

Entrees \$19-26. 17  $\check{E}$ . Main St., Riverhead. 208-3151 (Trueman-Honey, 7/04/03). [D, P].

Big Event of the Week

Let's Talk About Africa! Ready To Go On Safari?

Safari is a Swahili word meaning "journey," and going on one is a journey in every sense of the word - personal, scientific, historical and cultural. Africa is one of the last great places on earth where there is relatively easy access to huge wilderness areas, and Wildlives Safari Company offers an incredible opportunity to explore this wilderness and the wildlife that inhabits it.

On Saturday, September 13 at noon, exhibiting photographer Kim Lipkin and safari guide Quinton Martins of Wildlives Safari will lead a free seminar on African excursions, emphasizing wildlife conservation in Africa and the world, at Castello di Borghese on the North Road in Cutchogue.

Wildlives offers exclusive, tailor-made packages to Botswana, Tanzania, South Africa and other destinations. If you've ever considered this experience, this seminar will provide an excellent opportunity to ask questions and learn more. Also check out the fabulous exhibit of Mr. Lipkin's work in the gallery at Borghese. Call 734-5111 for details. -S.W.Simm, wine@danspapers.com

Dans WINE GUIDE

First Annual Long Island Wine Classic Bridgehampton, August 23

The kick-off to the Hampton Classic Horse Show, this inaugural benefit, sponsored by Wine Spectator magazine, raised over $30,000. All three eastern Long Island hospitals were the beneficiaries. Auction highlights included the sale of an electric GEM car, worth over $10,000, and a trip to Italy, courtesy of Alitalia and Castello Banfi.

Nearly 700 people attended the two parts of the event, and 18 restaurants paired dishes with more than 100 wines from 27 Long Island wineries. Attendees included Four Seasons Restaurant co-owner Julian Niccolini, Dan Wassong (CEO of Sally Hansen), Tavern on the Green's Jennifer Oz Le Roy, and Southampton Town Councilman Dennis Suskind and Assemblywoman Pat Acampora. Food writer John Mariani presided as MC.

"It was the most magnificent evening weather-wise in a spectacular setting with exceptional food and great wines," said Jane Baxter Lynn, executive director of the Long Island Wine Council. "We've heard nothing but rave reviews about the way the food and wine were presented together."

Famous for its use as a blending grape in Bordeaux, Merlot has achieved notoriety world-wide in its own right over the past decade. And on September 6, nearly 300 fans of the varietal were treated to over 100 Merlots at this annual event held at Lenz Winery. The weather was perfect, the wines represented regions all over the world, including Long Island, of course, and eight lucky attendees won grand prizes. This event also represented a terrific expansion in scope: a few years ago only 25-30 Merlots were able to be offered.

Corey Creek and Bedell Cellars Bring Home The Gold

And The Winner Is...

The 2003 New York Wine & Food Classic competition was held in California's wine region at COPIA: the American Center for Wine, Food and the Arts in Napa, on August 3 and 4. Known as the "Oscars" of New York wine competitions, the event features wine entries from all over New

Winemaker Kip Bedell

York State. Corey Creek's niner was named the best

2001 Gewürztraminer was named the best Gewürztraminer in the competition. The wine, which was first awarded a double gold before advancing to the finals to be named best Gewürztraminer overall, sells for $15 a bottle at the winery. IBest described having rose petal and litchi aromas, this Alsatian-style wine is infused with hints of pineapple, melon and papaya.

The 2000 Bedell Cellars Merlot was also awarded a Double Gold medal, one of only two Merlots to receive the award this year. (Double Gold medals require unanimity among the judges on a panel.) The 2000 Bedell Cellars Merlot sells for $18 a bottle at the winery and has hints of cocoa, spice and berry flavors on the nose. Soft, yet firm tannins give the wine structure, and a long, deep finish positions this Merlot as an exceptional food wine.

Bedell Cellars and Corey Creek Vineyards were awarded a total of 11 medals at this prestigious event.

To purchase these wines or any other Corey Creek or Bedell Cellars wines, visit www.bedell-cellars.com or call (631) 765-4168 or (631) 734-7537.

Dans WINE GUIDE

When the owners of the very successful Cherry Creek Golf Course just north of Riverhead's village center decided to build a second course there, they also decided to build a restaurant. Laura Sasso-Beyrodt, a daughter of one of the partners and the restaurant's manager, explained that their objective has been to create a place where everyone, golfers and non-golfers alike, could enjoy excellent food at realistic prices.

Stonewalls has only been open just over a month, so to allow a review so quickly was, in and of itself, an act of faith on the part of the kitchen and wait staff.

The executive chef is Guy Peuch, born and trained in France, who came to Stonewalls having previously owned the Inn on the Harbor in Cold Spring Harbor. Before that he did stints at the North Shore's La Marmite and Manhattan's Water Club, among others.

As soon as you enter you sense an air of warmth and comfortable elegance. The dining room is a blend of rust, yellows, and greens with black and green chairs, soft lighting and pleasant background music.

The wine list is extensive and well planned and it was good to see that Long Island was well represented. The pricing is excellent. You can get a very drinkable bottle of wine for $17 to $25, something others could well emulate.

First, we sampled Guy's lobster bisque and this immediately told us that we were in for a treat. This was probably the best lobster bisque we have tasted. Full of subtleness and depth of flavor, like a good wine, with a perfectly silky finish and ample pieces of lobster, this was something really to be savored. I have often commented that soup and bread basket are a very good way to make a preliminary judgment on a restaurant and this proved once again to be true, as we went on to sample the hot seafood arrangement of grilled Spanish prawn, crab cake, hot oysters, baked clams and sea scallops, each with their own sauce. This was a wonderful blend of tastes and the excellent hot whole wheat rolls came into good use for mop up operations. If you love paté, this is the place, for the duck paté with pistachio and truffle was superb.

Stonewalls, The Woods At Cherry Creek Golf Course

The course at Cherry Creek

Very tender baby arugula with oven roasted red pepper, goat cheese and avocado, perfectly dressed with a basil vinaigrette, was full of delicate bitterness offset by the dressing and was a wonderful palate cleanser. Next, we moved on to one of Guy's pasta offerings, rigatoni with roasted tomatoes, mozzarella, capers and olives, the perfect Mediterranean taste with pasta exquisitely al dente.

Incidentally, one thing we both loved was the fact that we ate from dinner plates which were too hot to touch, wonderful for keeping hot dishes hot as you eat and something which should be standard in all good restaurants.

From the main courses we tasted a beautifully delicate baked halibut in a mustard nut crust and a vibrant duck a l'orange with some incredible wild rice.

*Desserts continued this impressive culinary treat with a variant on apple tart tatin and a light vanilla almond cheesecake, but for me the best was a tangy lemon tart served with addictive orange chips and a very complementary blood orange sorbet.

As we sipped a cup of strong espresso we both agreed that this was one of our favorite meals in our eating around Long Island.

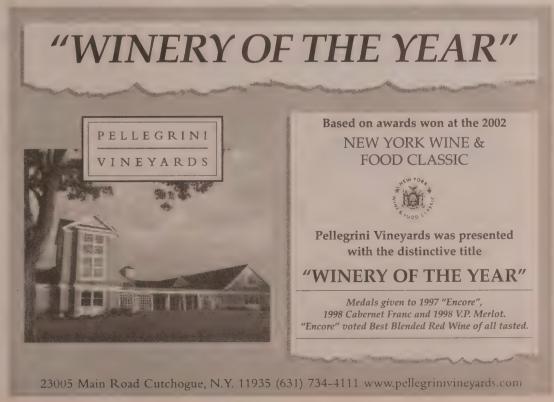

Stonewalls is very definitely not a typical golf course restaurant but rather a restaurant offering excellent food and ambience that happens to be on a golf course. This is a destination establishment because it is not on a well-traveled road, but it is highly recommended as a dining destination because, based on our visit, Guy Peuch is among the very top tier of chefs in this region and Stonewalls is another very welcome addition to the ranks of excellent restaurants on Eastern Long Island. —Roy Bradbrook

Appetizers range from $9.50 to $18; Main courses from $15 to $27 and desserts $7.

Banfi Wine Dinner at Chas Rothmann's Steakhouse September 15, East Norwich, 7 p.m.

Wine Country International Magazine presents an exclusive wine dinner featuring Castello Banfi wines at Chas Rothmann's Steakhouse in beautiful East Norwich on Long Island's North Shore (just south of Oyster Bay). An evening of fine Italian wines and deliciously inspired gourmet food, meticulously crafted to accompany the wines of Castello Banfi, will honor Long Island's Mariani family, proprietors of Castello Banfi. The event benefits the L.I. Chapter of the Foundation Fighting Blindness. $125 per person, which includes a free ticket ($60 value) to the "Blind" Wine Tasting Gala, on September 22, at the Crest Hollow Country Club in Woodbury. Call 631-366-3461.

The "Blind" Wine Tasting Gala September 22, Woodbury, 5-9 p.m.

The 8th Annual "Blind" Wine Tasting Gala is a spectacular fun-filled event with over 250 wines, micro-brews, gourmet food, auctions and more. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Foundation Fighting Blindness. New this year is the Connoisseur Room, with VIP service, rare spirits, library wines, and a book signing by Louisa Hargrave. All at the Crest Hollow Country Club in Woodbury (just north of the LIE east of Glen Cove Road). Admission: $100 VIP/$60 General. Call 631-366-3461.

New York Wine Experience October 23-25, Manhattan

This spectacular 3-day event, sponsored by Wine Spectator Scholarship Foundation, begins at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, October 23, with the "Critics' Choice" Grand Tastings. This is the first of two nights to taste wine from more than 240 of the best wineries in the world. All the wineries participating have been carefully selected by the Wine Spectator board of editors and have earned our 2003 "Critics' Choice" award. Each winery has been asked to pour one great vintage throughout the two nights of tastings — a wine rated 90 points or higher by Wine Spectator. This is a rare opportunity to meet the owners and winemakers who will be pouring their wines. Long Island wineries Bedell Cellars of Cutchogue and Wölffer Estate of Sagaponack have been selected.

In addition to the Grand Tastings, there will be tastings of Rhone wines, Chiantis, German Rieslings, and a vertical tasting of Francis Ford Coppola's Niebaum-Coppola Rubicon. On the final evening, the famed movie director will be presented with a Distinguished Service Award during a grand black-tie banquet. Entertainer Paul Anka, along with his full orchestra, will perform.

Also on day three, a "TV Chef Matchoff" will feature Emeril Lagasse of Emeril's, Wolfgang Puck of Spago, and Mario Batali of Babbo (NYC), three renown restaurateurs and television cooking personalities. Thomas Matthews, executive editor of Wine Spectator, will arbitrate.

This event will take place at the New York Marriott Marquis, 1535 Broadway. Call 212-398-1900 or 1-800-228-9290 for hotel information. Tickets are $1575 per person include the Thursday and Friday "Critics' Choice Grand Tastings," Friday and Saturday seminars, luncheons, conducted tastings, and Saturday's gala award dinner. ### TOMATOES AT QUAIL HILL FARM

Ask the farmers and they will all tell you the same thing. "Tomatoes require hot sunny days and warm nights in addition to good irrigation." Tomatoes have arrived late this summer because of an early rainy season. But these jewels of summer have indeed arrived, and the varieties are staggering.

On Saturday, September 6, Quail Hill Organic Community Farm in Amagansett held their annual GREAT TOMATO TASTE-OFF for an open-tothe-public event to taste and rate 37-plus varieties of mostly heirloom tomatoes. Shapes, colors and flavors ranged from tiny cherry to traditional rounds, from deep reds, yellow and reddish green to deep mahogany and even black brown. Flavors were amazingly contrasted. It was interesting to note that not every tomato had that summer, locally harvested sweetness one normally expects. They ranged from bland too tangy, to various degrees of acidity to fairly sweet to excitingly sweet. Notable was an outstanding zebra-like skinned green tomato with a sweet zingy flavor, called - what else - Green Zebra and Matt's Wild Cherry, a tiny bright red tomato, packed with full sweet flavor. Printed sheets listing several tomato categories including color category such as, currant/cherry/grape, standard reds such as Brandywine, paste tomatoes essentially for sauces, and BI-color are numbered within each category for participants to rate.

According to farm member and volunteer events organizer, Jane Weissman, the taste-off ratings allows Quail Hill to select from these diverse varieties for planting next season. The farm, a project of Peconic Land Trust, is taking late summer memberships. Tantalize your taste buds with sweet vine-ripened tomatoes for as long as they last – then until we meet again – next year.

TOMATO, SWEET PEPPER AND NICOISE OLIVE SALAD

Serves 6-8

- 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 medium red onion, thinly sliced
- 3 cloves garlic, finely chopped

1 red pepper, trimmed and cut into julienne 1 yellow pepper, trimmed and cut into julienne 1/4 cup Nicoise olives, coarsely chopped 3-4 tablespoons red wine vinegar Pinch red pepper flakes

2 tablespoons julienne of fresh basil

2 tablespoons chopped flat leaf Italian parsley Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepperto taste

- 2 medium red tomatoes, cut into large dice 2 medium yellow tomatoes cut into large dice
- 1. Heat olive oil over medium low heat and slowly saute onion until they are tender, stirring occasionally. Add the garlic and cook one minute longer. Put in the peppers and cook for 2-3 minutes. Add remaining ingredients except tomatoes; cook over medium heat and simmer until peppers are tender. Adjust seasoning as necessary and cool to room temperature. Stir in the tomatoes and taste again for oil and vinegar. Can be prepared ahead and served at room temperature.

MARINATED CHERRY TOMATO AND PARSLEY SALAD

This is the perfect time of the year to make a fresh cherry tomato salad.

Serves 4-6

1 pint cherry or grape tomatoes

1 cucumber, peeled, seeded and sliced thin

4 scallions, trimmed and sliced thin

1/3 cup chopped flat-leaf Italian parsley Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper

1 tablespoon red wine vinegar

2 1/2-3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

1. Rinse cherry tomatoes and pat dry with paper towels. Slice in half lengthwise and put into a bowl.

2. Peel the cucumber and halve lengthwise. Scrape and discard seeds then cut into thin slices. Discard any bruised outer scallion layers, rinse and pat dry, Cut white and light green parts into thin slices Add sliced cucumber, scallions and parsley. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add vinegar and oil and gently toss to mix. Can be prepared ahead, refrigerated for several hours or overnight. Serve at room temperature.

FRESH TOMATO TARRAGON SAUCE

A light and tasty sauce to prepare in summer when fresh tomatoes are at their peak. Use on grilled, poached or baked fish.

Yield: 1 1/2 cups

2 teaspoons olive oil

1 teaspoon unsalted butter

2 scallions, trimmed and thinly sliced

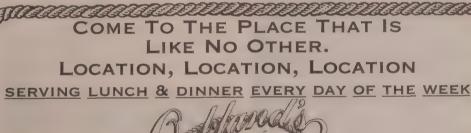

1 cup peeled, seeded and diced tomatoes

Coarse Kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

1/4 cup dry white wine

1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon leaves

1. Place oil and butter in a skillet over medium heat and when butter melts add the scallions. Saute for a minute or two until tender. Add tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste and wine. Bring mixture to the edge of a boil. Adjust heat to a simmer and cook for 5-7 minutes until wine evaporates by half. Add tarragon and stir to mix. Taste to adjust seasoning if necessary. Serve warm or at room temperature napping cooked fish filets.

Just when you thought the party season was over, Pacific East has announced they will be the host of the Grand Soirée for the Cartier Grand Slam. The Cartier is a tennis tournament featuring tennis legend John McEnroe, benefiting the American Cancer Society on Saturday, September 13 at 6:30 p.m. The Grand Soirée will feature cocktails and hors d'oeuvres, a live auction, raffles and-gift bags. For further information call Pacific East at 267-7770.

Planning a party this fall? Sag Harbor's The Beacon will offer catering in their waterfront restaurant. Both seated and buffet menus are available for a minimum of twenty-five people and range from $60 to $75 per person. Seated menus include a choice of four different passed hors d'oeuvres, three courses including dessert and coffee, and house red and white wine poured throughout. Main course choices include: grilled salmon with lobster butter, haricots verts and Yukon mashed potatoes; panseared loin of lamb with white beans, pepperoncini and roasted corn succotash; and ovenroasted chicken with julienne carrots, roasted shallots and smoked bacon-pecorino risotto.

Buffet menus include passed hors d'oeuvres, and a full buffet table including dessert and coffee, also with house red and white wine. Some buffet choices include: guava baby back ribs; grilled salmon or striped bass; toasted Israeli couscous with sundried tomatoes; and maple crème brulee. Call 725-7088 for reservations.

When in the Sayville area stop in to Crazy Dog Restaurant. Crazy Dog has recently begun to serve lunch from 11:30 to 3 Tuesday through Saturday. Some of the new lunch dishes include: country fried Caesar salad, marinated steak sandwich, blackened tuna BLT, lobster club sandwich, American Kobe beef burger and seafood or grilled vegetable pizza. Call 589-4900 for all the particulars. Crazy Dog is

B & B Clambakes: Time For Fun

The summer may have come to a close, but the season of outdoor affairs is still in full swing. September is known to be one of the best months in the Hamptons to have an outdoor catered affair such as weddings, birthday parties, reunions, staff parties and end of the summer celebrations. A standout caterer to book your fall party with is B & B Clambakes, a full service catering company offering traditional clambakes as well as a variety of other tasty food arrays. Owned by Michael Bunce, B&B Clambakes has been planning and catering events for the last 11 years on the East End. Choose from various delicious packages such as the "Traditional Layered Clambake," a historic tradition on the East End where all ingredients are steamed together and served buffet style. Clambakes include chips and homemade salsa, clams, mussels, lobster, chicken, potatoes, corn on the cob and watermelon. If you aren't a seafood lover, then opt for the "All-American BBQ" with grilled burgers and hot dogs, BBQ chicken and ribs made with homemade BBQ sauce, local corn on the cob, homemade cole slaw and watermelon. Or for something with a little ethnic flair there's the scrumptious "Southwest Special" with chips, salsa and guacamole, black bean salad, grilled vegetables, marinated chicken breast, marinated London broil, saffron rice and fajita fixings for your guests who want to wrap up their own fajitas. For a real spectacle, there's the "Party Time Pig Roast" featuring a succulent whole pig roasted on site glazed with a tangy basil sauce and served with pineapple chicken, curried rice, garden salad and seasonal vegetables. For a more civilized upscale event there's the "Magnificent Marsala," start with steamed clams and mussels in white wine and garlic, a raw bar featuring local seafood or passed hors d'oeuvres and a main course of chicken marsala with wild rice, seasonal vegetables and garden salad with a homemade raspberry vinaigrette. Finally for a party with an Italian flavor try the "Pasta Pisacano" featuring baked ziti with homemade tomato sauce, sausage and peppers, garden salad and Italian bread. Other extras are always available to be added to your party such as shrimp cocktail, tomato and fresh mozzarella platters, fresh salads, clam dip, fruit salad, raw bar, sushi and more. Whichever appetizing package you choose, B&B Clambakes will provide set-up, clean-up, staff, paper products and utensils at all events with the option for additional staff and bartender if desired. As well they also offer event-planning services such as rentals, music, flowers and more. B&B can handle events from 20 to 200.

So whether it's a wedding, a birthday party or just an end of the summer celebration, call B&B Clambakes to book your next party at (631) 324-2971 or (631) 726-6802.

Orthotripsy: Heal Your Heel, Save Your Swing

It has been a very wet summer. That probably did not stop you from playing as much tennis as possible, running on glorious winding roads and walking on stretches of beach rain or shine, and generally doing what we all like to do in the Hamptons – be outside, breathe the fresh air and exercise away our more sedentary off season lifestyle. But there is sometimes a price to pay for getting in shape.

Chronic "plantar fasciitis," a painful heel condition, and "lateral epicondylitis", commonly known as tennis elbow, are two ailments well known to weekend warriors and the physicians who treat them. Now, after years of suffering through temporary solutions of rest, ice, heat, anti-inflammatories, physical therapy, painful cortisone shots and then a last attempt at a cure through full-blown surgery, patients suffering from these conditions have a better choice of treatment.

Shock wave therapy, known by the brand name of Orthotripsy, is a highly-effective, non-invasive outpatient procedure that can cure the symptoms of tennis elbow and heel pain, whether or not it has accelerated into a heel spur.

Dr. Mark Wilner, Medical Director of Allied Metropolitan Associates, is a physiatrist specializing in physical medicine and rehabilitation of sports injuries, and he is one of only four doctors in the NYC area using the Ossitron. It is a modified version of a machine that has been used to treat and break up kidney stones with a shock wave, and without surgery, to great success over the past 15 years. Only last year the FDA approved the therapy for orthopedic use, and the results have been terrific.

"Recovery time is very quick. There is an excellent risk-to-benefit ratio. Patients typically have the procedure and are able to return to work the following day," Dr. Wilner says. A patient will receive a light dose of general anesthesia, have a 30-minute procedure, and find permanent relief from their condition in a few weeks to a few months. There is no incision, no special footgear or casting to wear and most importantly, no time period of immobilization.

A high-energy shock wave is passed through the skin and muscles and creates a microscopic tear in the area, causing blood flow to increase. The increased blood flow helps heal the damaged area. "It irritates the area, breaks up scar tissue, improves blood flow and allows the body to heal itself," explains Dr. Wilner.

About forty million people suffer from heel pain, which can come about not only from spurts of exercise such as running, but also from being on your feet a lot. Ironically, it can also occur in people who are too sedentary and overweight. Dr. Wilner has heard it described as a feeling of a piece of broken glass in the shoe, chronic and very unpleasant.

Tennis elbow is a repetitive stress injury and is often described as a toothache in the arm. It may be caused by poor technique, wrong sized grip or simply weak shoulder and wrist muscles. The pain will start slowly at the outside bump of the elbow and continue to travel along the muscles and tendons of the forearm, sometimes even to the hand. It has been notoriously hard to cure, and staying off the courts has often been a long-standing and unfortunate suggestion from physicians.

Orthotripsy brings new hope to those of us who want to continue the route to health and happiness through exercising in the great outdoors. And if you are lucky enough to be playing in the Cartier Grand Slam this weekend, to benefit the American Cancer Society, you might just want to save this article.

FALL DRAMA

The word for fall is drama. Flawless skin, smoky eyes, red lips - always changing. But this can be a nice change from the bronze and tawny look of summer. Clinque is big on drama with it's Fall 2003 collection. Eyes are striking with Clinique's new High Impact Eye Shadow Quad in either cool or warm shades. Layer the colors for a more dramatic look, then use plenty of mascara for glamorous eyes. Finish with luscious-looking lips. Clinique's experts suggest your fall lip color be bold and defined in deep plums and fiery russets. Give it a try, but if lipstick is too heavy for you, use one of the new lip glosses for exceptional shine.

Estee Lauder's look for fall is Pure Drama. It's new eye shadow compact looks like a bull's eye. It's an unexpected pairing of two eye shadow shades, light and dark, with the lightest surrounding the dark. The look can be dramatic. Try chocolate and gilded beige, cobalt blue and icy blue, or jet black and white. Vary your eyeshadow with your mood. Lancome's Urban Eve fall collection has a secret weapon for a healthy glow. Try Colour Dose Lips & Cheeks to enhance your natural color. You'll look like you have an outdoorsy flush. Colour Dose comes in a tube and gives your lips and cheeks a sheer stain in seconds.

Stila reinvents Mod Style in its fall collection. Shimmering shadows, in either cocoa, gray, or deep plum, paired with a dramatically lined eye is the look for the season. Sheer cheeks and pretty lips complete this modern look.

Best of all is the Stila 3-pan compact combining two eye shadows (one from the shimmering base and one from the liner) with one complementary cheek color for a look that is modern and fun.

Nars has Raw Glamour for the fall with sexy and sultry eyes. Gunmetal grays, intensive violets and metallic greens add a rocker-chic edge to your eyes while the red adorns your lips. For a more natural look, brush on the warm glow of an autumn afternoon with Prescriptives Mosaic All Over Face Powder. This compact for eyes and cheeks brings a glow to the skin, perfect for adding warmth to a fading tan. For another natural look, try Bobbi Brown's

Nude on Nude for fall. The eye palette has four skin-tone inspired shades of eye shadow and a fifth shade for lining. Add a healthy flush with one of the new cream flush sticks in a sheer, flattering shade, then top off your look with the perfect nude lip color in a shade that looks like your lips, only better.

At Bloomingdale's this week, a great 8-piece gift set. With any purchase of $19.50 or more get Repairwear Intensive Night Cream, Eye Defining Duo Shadow and Liner in Gilded. Along with this get Bonus Favs, Dramatically Different Moisturizing Lotion, Lash Doubling Mascara in Black, Stop Signs Hand Repair. And Bonus Exclusives, Glosswear for Lips/Glosswear, for lips Sheer Shimmers Duo in Shy Beige/Sunset. A pop-up brush with mirror and a cosmetic bag. Pick up Clinque's sheer, vibrant new fragrance that surrounds you with unexpected warmth and depth, Clinque Simply. 1.7 fl. oz., 39.50, 3.4 fl. oz., 53.50.

Have a great week!

ABOUT GIARDENING ... WITH ANNETTE

DRYING ANNUALS FOR FALL DISPLAY

There is no better time than now to consider drying some of your remaining annuals for fall displays. The easiest way is hang drying. After picking, all leaves should be removed, and flowers grouped in bunches of six to eight stems. Wind an elastic band tightly around the stems. Then hang the bundles upside down out of the light in a well- ventilated, dry area. Leave enough space between bundles to allow for good air circulation and protect the bundles by enclosing them in large paper bags. The flowers will dry in two to three weeks. They can then be laid in covered boxes or left hanging as decora-

Some flowers are too thick and others too delicate to successfully hang dry. Instead they can be dried with a desiccant, a material that will draw moisture into it. Floral desiccant is sold commercially or you can make it yourself by mixing equal parts of fine, dry sand and borax powder. To use, pour an inch or more of desiccant in the bottom of a box, then lay the flowers on top. Very carefully spoon more desiccant up and around each flower head. Once all of the flowers are mounded over, an additional inch or two of desiccant should be gently poured on top. I use a large shallow box for long spikes or blooms such as larkspur. For single but dense blooms, like marigolds or roses, remove the flower stem first and replace it with a stiff wire stem. Lay the flowers flat on the surface of the desiccant, then mound more of it around and over them.

Drying will take several weeks, depending on the density of the flowers. When they're dry, carefully unbury them, gently brush away any adhering desiccant with a soft artist brush, and store them in covered boxes in a dry place till you are ready to use.

A third method for readying flowers for a project is to press flowers and leaves between layers of absorbent blotting paper or paper towels. The result of this process is that everything comes out flat. But that may be the effect you want. Another way to flatten out blossoms begins with a piece of heavy > cardboard. Lay it out as the base, and then lay a sheet of drying paper on top. Carefully arrange the flowers and leaves, making sure that there is space between them. Lay one or two more layers of drying paper on top. Arrange another layer of leaves and flowers. Keep alternating until there are a half dozen layers of plant materials. Top these with more drying paper and a final piece of cardboard. Finally place a heavy weight on top of the stack. Sometimes I have placed this under a mattress. Moisture will be squeezed out of the flowers onto the paper. Check after a week to see how your drying is progressing. If any mold has formed, remove and replace the drying papers. After several weeks, the plant material will be ready to store! I use these flattened out beauties between the glass on my furniture for a beautiful effect. I have ture frames. For a nice window decoration, place flowers between two pieces of glass, and press copper on the edges to hold. This technique works well with small flowers such as pansies, petunias and baby's breath. It is also suited for parts of flowers, such as single petals of sweet peas, poppies and cosmos. Some great flowers for pressing are: Single Pink, Pansy, Dusty Miller, and Baby's Breath.

Some flowers for drying: Zinnia, Strawflower, Ornamental Grasses, Bells of Ireland, Love-in-a-Mist pods and Sunflowers.

Til next time, keep those hands dirty!

Risk: Feeling Lucky?

After all the controversy caused by the market volatility over the past three years, we should have learned a great deal about risk. We are now seeing the stock market begin to rise and we believe there is hope once again. Looking at our portfolio we probably realize some of our picks were too risky and wish we had made different choices. But how many people are making the changes necessary based on their tolerance for risk?

We are seeing some investors just happy they are at breakeven with their investments and selling out their investment portfolios due to fear. Other investors are just continuing to hold their current investments out of greed to get that "extra point". Most stock market losses have occurred because of fear and greed.

What is the rate of return you want? A get-richquick attitude can cause you to make choices outside of your investment plan. A better plan may be to lower your expectations a bit and invest in companies you are comfortable owning.

What are you investing for? Whether you are investing for college, retirement, or charitable reasons, your investments should not be of the same type. Some investments are only for the long term.

If you put a long-term investment in a short-term portfolio it actually increases your risk of performance if you have to sell during a market downturn.

How comfortable are you with the investments you own now? Are you just sticking with your investments hoping they will come back, because you have a long-term horizon? You should be familiar with the investments' beta, price persistence, earnings predictability, and debt ratings; otherwise you might sell the investment prematurely. As you learn more about your investments and how different risks affect them, then your ability to assume more risk may grow.

Have you really reassessed your portfolio goals? We are finding that many financial plans need to be adjusted after the past three years. If you do not reevaluate your financial objectives you may not have sufficient resources in the future and you may not like the adjustments you will then be forced to make to your financial plan. Reevaluating your investments now may mean that you might have to work longer, save more, or retire later, but you will not have to take undue risks in the future to make up lost ground.

Police Blotter

I thought we all agreed that summer is over and we can all get back to our real lives. I think a few of you missed the memo. Police are still rounding up the usual suspects at local beach clubs. Last Saturday, for example, at Neptune's Beach club in Hampton Bays police arrested a 32-year-old Oakdale man for being "highly intoxicated and agitated" (I thought that was the point beach bar boozin'). The man was brought to the police station, after refusing to cooperate, where he spat at an officer. He was subsequently charged with criminal mischief in the fourth degree.

The beefy barbecues are on the back burner for a Riverside residence. A Ludlam Avenue home owner called Southampton Town Police when he discovered $50 worth of hamburgers, steaks and sausages stolen from his freezer. No other items, including condiments, were reported stolen.

East Hampton Town Police received four different reports of stolen and damaged signs this past week. Among the unfortunate were a political advertisement worth $200, price signs from a gas station worth $50, a real estate advertisement worth $25 and a sign reading "Fine Arts" which was valued at $150. Police are investigating and making extra patrols.

A man employed by a Tanger Outlets home furnishing store is the subject of police investigation. Fellow employees told police that the man, with the help of four others not employed by the store, removed two couches and three chairs collectively worth over $4,000. Police have not yet charged the suspect.

A Dix Hills man was charged with criminal trespass on Saturday after police responded to a call from an East Hampton resident who wanted him to leave. When police arrived, they found that the highly intoxicated trespasser had just completed some "renovations" inside the house. One officer read the man his rights as another photographed damaged walls, furniture, smoke detectors, cabinets and a broken toilet.

A D-V-devious criminal struck hard at Blockbuster Video last Wednesday. Employees of the Riverhead location discovered $100 worth of DVD's missing and called police.

A Greenport resident won't be traveling far anytime soon. Last Friday the Center Street home owner discovered $8,000, a passport and a few valuable rings missing from the house which had been unoccupied overnight. Police are investigating.

Police responded to the Montauk Firehouse on Flamingo Road Saturday after receiving a call from a member of the fire department. He told police dispatchers that there was an intruder in the building. When police arrived they confronted the unauthorized visitor who couldn't give a valid reason for being there. He was arrested and held overnight awaiting arraignment.

Some mischievous misfits were up to no good in Laurel last Friday when they attacked two parked vehicles with bags of flour causing minor damage. The unknown flour children remain at large while police still investigate.

WHAT'S EATING GILBERT SCHWARTZ? Dear Dan,

I'm not sure what to make of your article regarding the circus in East Hampton. You do realize that circus animals are abused terribly and forced to perform really ridiculous stupid tricks – right? Let's all give the animals a break and leave them alone in the wild where they belong.

Thanks for your interest.

THANKS Dear Dan.

I would like to thank you and your son David regarding the letter about Kris Dalene. I hope you pass this on to David. As you know your kids have also been special to us as we saw them growing up and every time I see David I make sure to say hello to him. Kids are special and when we lose one it hurts throughout the community. I believe we live in an awesome community and it was evident through Kris' tragedy. He will be missed.

GONE FISHIN' Dear Dan.

First I'd like to say that I'm a fan of Dan's Papers. Thank you for keeping the publication filled with charm and wit (I remember what she used to be like in the late 70s, despite its obvious growth, it still maintains that simple appeal and feeling). Thank you.

Enclosed is a copy of my new fifty song, 4 CD set "Papa Was A Fishin' Man" a collection of all original material devoted to fishing across America. I am a native Long Islander, born and raised in East Patchogue and many of the songs were inspired by my days fishing all over the island. I spent many summers on the East End, working at Gurney's, singing and performing all over the South Fork, surfing at Ditch, catching shows at the Talkhouse, etc. I also got married at the East Hampton Presbyterian /Church (just celebrated my 22nd wedding anniversary) and was "discovered" on a cold, New Year's Eve night while bell-hopping at Gurney's by Peter Beard and a cache of Ford models and agents (that led to a GQ cover with Bruce Weber that fall and a twelve year career as a Ford model). Those summers were some of the best days of my life. And far as I'm concerned, Pizza Village in Montauk still makes the best linguine with white clam sauce I've ever tasted.

Due to the fact that my wife's family lives out here and my daughter's finishing up high school, I'm still living in San Diego. I miss the island very much; all my family still lives there. We always talk of moving back someday.

While country in style and flavor (how else would a fishing record sound?) I thought you and the staff would enjoy the CD's particularly "Cottage By the Bay" which was inspired by my summers on the East End.

Gary Shiebler WGFB.com Via e-mail

P.S. My sister and artist, Susan Elise Shiebler, has been featured on a number of your recent covers. As her older brother, I want to thank you for giving her the opportunity to feature her work. She does not have an easy life, being the single mother of four children. I'm amazed she has any time to paint at all!

We're a wonderful community. -D.R.

A VOTRE SANTE Dear Dan,

Now that the dust has settled on the inaugural at Long Island Wine Classic, I would like to thank you on behalf of the Long Island Wine Council members and the Hampton Classic for all the pre-publicity and advertising that your paper gave to the event. It was with support from media like Dan's that this first time event was so well attended. We truly appreciate it.

Jane Baxter Lynn Executive Director Long Island Wine Council

Anything with wine, count me in. -D.R.

GARLAND FOR $35? Dear Dan,

I noticed the following item in last week's edition under the category of Day By Day: "Garland Jeffreys will appear at The Bay Street Theater at 8 p.m. for $35.

As I was unable to attend, I was curious to inquire as to whether the fine citizens of Sag Harbor had been able to raise the requisite $35 or was Mr. Jeffrey's relegated to staying home with a good book?

Donald J. Stewart East Patchogue

The works cheap. Lucky for us. -D.R.

XXXX

Dear Dan,

I hate to say it but I am glad that the season is closing... We can get our lives back to normal. Maybe the roads will be safer and cleaner and attitudes better. I couldn't help but think when I saw the traffic this weekend going east, east, east...that with all the weight of the SUV's, trailers, mobile homes, cars, jeeps, motorcycles, etc...that maybe the end of the island will break off into the ocean. No kidding. It could happen.

We work all year to be able to shop, go to the beaches and enjoy outdoor concerts, but unfortunately, this beautiful pristine area becomes a zoo..forcing us to say close to home, cook in and watch TV all summer because there is no place to park, no room at the restaurants, the lines in the stores are so long, and the beaches are crowded.

Now that it is over, I say thank goodness and let's get back to basics.

We love your paper and hope that you will be here forever in the Hamptons.

Thanks Dan. You're an icon here and we love you.

Rose Murphy, East Hampton Via e-mail

September is our best month, I think. -D.R.

in the world, start with Grey Goose Le Citron.

In 2001, the Beverage Testing Institute of Chicago conducted a blind taste test of the world's top lemon flavored vodkas. They awarded points based on smoothness, nose and taste. After careful consideration, Grey Goose Le Citron was rated the number one lemon tasting vodka. Praised for its "exceptionally smooth... medium body" and "very clean finish," Le Citron is the best tasting vodka in the world infused with the light zest of fresh lemon.

Rank	Vodka
